EUROPE

The Infallibility of the Pope—The Hierarchical Definition not the Catholic Powers.

PARIS, March 9.—It is understood that other Catholic Powers will join France in the demands for special representatives in the Ecumenical Council. The Prince DE LA TOUR D'AUVERGNE-LAURAGUAIS will probably be appointed as one of these representatives.

ROME, March 9.—The Pope temporizes, hoping to obtain a vote on the dogma of infallibility prior to the arrival of the French Commissioner.

LONDON, March 9.—The German and Austrian Bishops at the Ecumenical Council have agreed to oppose the proposition of infallibility, as well as all other new dogmas. It is generally hoped the Pope will not precipitate a collision with the European Powers.

LONDON, March 9, 12 P. M.—Among the propositions before the Ecumenical Council is one declaring the Pope infallible in matters of faith and practice.

Administrative Reforms Contemplated in France—The Political Prisoners—Spanish Politics—The Chinese Mission.

PARIS, March 9.—In the Corps Legislatif today a debate took place on the Government of Algeria. M. JULES FAVRE demanded that the affairs of that Province be regulated through the legislation of both Chambers, and not by Senatus Consultum. M. OLLIVIER replied that the Ministry desired to place other departments of administration under the control of the Legislative bodies, and they were now consulting with the Emperor on the best method of effecting such changes.... The Police no longer permit the friends of Henri ROCHEFORT to visit him at the prison. Another demonstration was made by the conscripts at Lyons yesterday. The disorder was quelled without serious trouble. It is reported that the small-pox has broken out in the jail where the political prisoners are confined.

MADRID, March 9.—In the Cortes yesterday Señor ESCORIAZA, one of the Deputies from Porto Rico, thanked the Minister of the Colonies for introducing a separate budget for that island. He said it was a concession which Porto Rico had vainly sought for the past thirty years.... The Cortes has voted pay for extra service to soldiers of the army in Cuba for their share in actions with the insurgents.

ST. PETERSBURG, March 9.—J. MCLEARY BROWN has been appointed provisionally chief of the Chinese Embassy, vice Mr. BURLINGAME, deceased.

Conservative Banquet in London—Health of Mr. Bright—The Ministers' Manse Bill Defeated in the House of Commons.

LONDON, March 9.—The Conservative Association held a banquet to-night at the City Terminus Hotel. Mr. R. N. FOWLER, member of Parliament for Falmouth, occupied the chair. He was supported on the right by the Duke of Marlborough, Lord Hamilton, Sir J. Pakington, Messrs. G. W. Hunt, J. R. Mowbray and Sir John Hay; and on the left by the Duke of Aberdeen, the Earl of Abergavenny, Sir Stafford Northcote, Mr. Lyall, and others. Some four hundred guests were present, including most of the principal men of the Conservative Party. Mr. DISRAELI was unable to attend. Letters from the Earl of DERBY, the Marquis of SALISBURY and Lord LISMORE were read, regretting their unavoidable absence. Lord GEORGE HAMILTON, in the course of his reply to a toast, made reference to what he termed the cheese paring policy of the Administration toward the army. This hit was received with loud applause. Sir J. PAKINGTON responded in the name of what was still left of the army. Its bravery, discipline and efficiency would be the same through all time. The policy of the present Government was condemned by all parties. To disconnect the army and reduce its force by 24,000 men was injurious economy. It was easier to dissolve then to reembody the army. Happily the country had another force, indissoluble, armed with truth, namely, the Conservative Party, enlisted to defend long established institutions, not excepting the Irish Church. Mr. BELCHER responder for the navy, and Mr. BERESFORD for the volunteers. The Chairman proposed the health of the leaders of the Conservative Party, and eulogized the late Lord DERBY. Mr. GATHORNE HARDY, in reply, said the party was now in a minority in Parliament, hence all its battles were fought outside. London had ever been faithful to conservatism, which was growing in all the great centers of trade and manufactures, and was sure of future ascendency. Other speakers followed, and the party broke up at a late hour.... JOHN BRIGHT is rusticating in the mountains of Wales. His health has improved.... There is a growing opposition to Mr. FORSTER'S Education bill, especially among Nonconformists.... In the House of Commons, this evening, a bill establishing a rate to provide for the maintenance of ministers' manses in Scotland was rejected by a majority of 117. The House adjourned.

CUBA

The Villanueva Theater Rioters Condemned to Death—Operations Against the Insurgents—The Freemasons.

HAVANA, March 9.—A military Court-martial has been in session in this city for the trial of persons accused of causing the riot in the Villanueva Theater last year. Of the number tried Señors BRANCADRO, VALDEZ, POMA, CISNEROS, RIVERO and VALDEVES have been found guilty of the charge and sentenced to death. Señors SANTACRUZ, PARRA and LATORRE, also on trial on the same charge, were acquitted. All of the above named are in the City of New-York. The Prensa states that the number of insurgents at Guines exceeds one hundred. The Diario says that fifty-six of the number have been killed by the troops, and, according to telegraphic dispatches from that quarter, the rest are completely surrounded. The Havana journals contain accounts of the dispersion and killing of two hundred insurgents belonging to the band of MAXIMO GOMEZ, near the town of Bayamo. A party of insurgents attacked the Armonia plantation, near Santiago de Cuba, and killed six of the operatives.... The Freemasons lately arrested for holding a meeting are still in jail.

THE SOUTH

Gen. Sheridan on the "Kuklux"—The Mississippi Central Accident—An Arkansas "Bulldozer"—Kuklux in West Virginia.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., March 9.—Gen. BRECKINRIDGE in an argument in a criminal case at Lexington, Ky., denounced the men who belong to the "Kuklux," as either idiots or villains, and asserted that he was free from any fear of them, and would readily respond to a summons from the Sheriff as one of a posse comitatus to arrest and bring these men to justice.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., March 9.—SAMUEL TATE, President of the Mississippi Central Railroad, publishes a card denying the statement of Mr. SIMONTON, Dr. SEITZ and others, in reference to the disaster on that road, which, he says, was an unfortunate accident, resulting from no carelessness on the part of the officials of that road.... A "difficulty" occurred in Forest City, Ark., yesterday, between two merchants and partners named J. PRUITT and W. ELLEBURY. PRUITT was instantly killed. ELLEBURY surrendered himself to the authorities, and was committed to jail for trial.

WHEELING, West Va., March 9.—U. S. Marshal BLACK writes from Charleston, Kanawha County, the recently selected capital of the State, under date of March 5, that an organized band of armed Kuklux appeared in the town in open daylight on the morning of the 3d inst., and opened the jail, and released the prisoners. The jailors were threatened with death if they gave any alarm. The organization is said to be extensive, and the civil authorities are powerless. In view of the speedy removal of the capital to Charleston, the Governor will call upon the General Government for military aid to suppress lawlessness.

Specie Payments—Kuklux in Tennessee.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., March 9.—Several business houses in this city are paying out silver change. A. J. FLETCHER, Secretary of State, having called upon Gen. LOVELL, commanding this post, to furnish him with a military escort home for protection against the Kuklux, the citizens of Nashville have called a meeting to appoint delegates to take the place of the soldiers. Mr. FLETCHER asserts that trains between Nashville and Chattanooga have been searched, and for this reason he asks the escort.

STATE LEGISLATURES

Matters in New-Jersey—The Capital of Wisconsin—Woman's Suffrage in Missouri.

TRENTON, N. J., March 9.—In the Senate a bill was introduced authorizing the tax payers in townships of the State to vote by ballot whether money shall be raised to reimburse persons who furnished substitutes during the late war. In the House, the bill to enable the Central Railroad Company to build a branch road from Elizabeth to connect with the Newark and New-York Railroad at Ferry-street, Newark, was taken up on the special order. A long and spirited debate ensued. Numerous motions were acted on and finally the bill was ordered to a third reading, with an amendment requiring that a picket fence be erected on each side of the road. A bill introduced to-day empowers the Milestone and New-Brunswick Railroad Company (Camden and Amboy) to extend their road to the Delaware River Bridge, and increase the capital stock. The bill authorizing Newark to purchase the property of the Newark Aqueduct Company was passed. It provides for the issue of bonds to the amount of $500,000 for compensation and for the building of a reservoir in the western portion of the city. The question concerning the establishment of boulevards in Hudson County came up in the shape of a bill providing for a special election by the residents of the county, to decide whether or not the avenues shall be opened. The estimate of the cost of the proposed avenues shows that the expense will be nearly $7,000,000. The bill was ordered to a third reading. The Weehawken Ferry bill was ordered to a third reading.

MILWAUKEE, March 9.—The bill for the removal of the capital was defeated in the Legislature last night by 55 to 30.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., March 9.—After three nights spirited debate in the Missouri Legislature, the proposition to submit to the people a constitutional amendment extending suffrage to women, the whole matter last night was indefinitely postponed by a vote of 62 to 21. The constitutional amendment abolishing the double liability clause, was adopted. The clause abolishing the oath of loyalty was defeated. The proposition to prevent an appropriation of public money for any sectarian institution was referred to the Committee on Constitutional Amendments.

AUGUSTA, Me., March 9.—In the Senate, to-day, the Consolidation bill came up by assignment. The bill was amended so as to apply to the roads known as the Portland and Kennebec and Maine Central. The amendments reported last week were adopted, and then indefinitely postponed by 15 to 24. It is said that members voted under a misapprehension of the question and that a motion to reconsider will be made, and the passage of the bill, possibly, yet secured.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, March 9.—A resolution has been adopted by the Senate, by almost unanimous vote, requesting Congress, in adjusting the tariff, to favor agricultural interests, or at least not to discriminate against them.

ST. PAUL, Minn., March 9.—The Governor has vetoed the Woman Suffrage bill, for the reasons that it was to be submitted to the women of the State, who are not legal voters, and that public sentiment has not called for it.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 9.—In the State Legislature to-day, the Assembly amended the Quarantine act so as to require every Chinaman on landing to be vaccinated by an officer, who is to receive $10 for the operation, and prohibiting the removal of the remains of the dead Chinese from the State, under a penalty of $100 in each case.

The Union Pacific Railroad—Election of Officers in Boston.

BOSTON, Mass., March 9.—The stockholders of the Union Pacific Railroad met in this City today and elected directors for the ensuing year as follows: Oliver Ames, Oakes Ames, John Duff, John B. Alley, C. H. McCormack, W. T. Gladden, R. Hazard, Elisha Atkins, A. C. Lombard, O. B. Chapman, James Brooks, G. M. Dodge, Sidney Dillon, Frederick Nickerson, C. S. Bushnell. The following is the substance of the report made by OLIVER AMES, President:

We have spent, during the past season, upon snow sheds and snow fences, over $300,000. We have now over five miles of snow sheds and nearly fifty miles of snow fences, in addition to the large amount of snow fences put up last year. The experiment thus far this Winter shows that our road can be without any serious hindrance or obstruction from snow. The snows of the present Winter have been the same as last Winter, and we have been but in one instance obstructed over twenty-four hours. Our Superintendent is confident that we can keep our road as free from obstruction by snow as the roads of New-England and New-York. The express business over our road was fully investigated during last Summer, and we came to the conclusion that it would be for the best interests of our road to dissolve our connection with WELLS, FARGO & CO. and do this business ourselves. The results of the change have been in increase our receipts about thirty per cent. Above what we received from WELLS, FARGO & CO. For the purpose of utilizing our telegraph lines, we have made a connection with the Atlantic and Pacific Telegraph Company, by which we are making a large portion of our telegraphic service free, and have the expectation of realizing a handsome income from the $2,500,000 of stock we receive from the Atlantic and Pacific Telegraph Company for the use of our lines for commercial purposes, should this Company make a connection with the Central Pacific Company, as they now propose to do, and secure a fair share of the California business. The savings of our road for the month reported since it first opened, amount to $2,000,000. We anticipate that the gross earnings of our road for the ensuing year will reach $12,000,000, and that the net earnings should shortly exceed this sum. The net income from this will pay all our interest with a handsome dividend upon our stock, should we not need it for improvements upon our road.

THE INDIANS.

Vincent Colyer's Reply to Gen. Sheridan—The Piegans Massacre.

WASHINGTON, March 9.—The following is VINCENT COLYER'S reply to Gen. SHERIDAN'S recent strictures upon him:

To Hon. Felix R. Brunot, Chairman, Pittsburg:

SIR: Gen. SHERIDAN strikes out at me almost as wildly as he did at the poor Piegans, and with about as much justice. He says that in my extract from Lieut. FRASER'S report of the massacre, "in order to do injustice to Col. BAKER and to deceive a kind-hearted public, I suppressed the fact that Col. BAKER took 140 women and children prisoners. If the General thinks that it relieves the blackness of the picture any to say that in addition to the ninety women and fifty children sick with the small-pox killed, there were one hundred women and children also taken prisoners, I will add it now. Lieut. FRASER, I notice upon a closer look, does not make quite so bad a job of that. He says there were eighteen women and thirteen children (some over three years and a majority much younger) some of whom were wounded when taken prisoners. The General seems to be quite forgetful that the same Government which placed him in command of the military of the West, appointed us to do our humane work among these Indians, and virtually makes it our duty to stand in front of these helpless outcast women and children, and when you call a great victory over the Indians, it does not follow that we do not want the men who perpetrated the horrid crimes you portray with as much zeal justly punished. Strike, if you must strike, the guilty, not the innocent.

Faithfully yours, VINCENT COLYER.

Friend JANNEY, Superintendent of Indian Affairs for the Northern Superintendency, is in this city, and was at the Indian Bureau to-day on business connected with the affairs of his office. Mr. JANNEY has a leave of absence, which he intends passing at his home in Virginia.

The Steamer Eagle—The Vessel and Part of the Cargo a Total Loss.

NORFOLK, Va., March 9.—Some of the passengers from the steam-ship Eagle, ashore at Body Island, arrived here this evening. The steamship grounded at 8½ o'clock Friday evening, a mile from shore. The passengers and crew were safely landed Saturday and Sunday. The steamer and part of the cargo will be a total loss. She had on board $200,000 in specie, all of which has been saved.

The New-Hampshire Elections—Returns from 214 Towns.

CONCORD, N. H., March 9.—Returns from 202 towns give STEARNS 32,867, BENDLE 22,864, PILOT 4,886, BARROWS 1,159. The remaining towns will give about 5,000, leaving Gov. STEARNS' majority at about 1,300. The Republicans will have about fifty majority in the House. The vote for Senators elects six Republicans, four Democrats and one Labor Reformer, and there is one vacancy.

CONCORD, N. H., March 9—10 P. M.—Returns from 214 towns do not materially change the former estimates of the result. Rev. Dr. BARROWS, not being a constitutional candidate, his vote may be thrown out, thus increasing Gov. STEARNS' majority.

Miscellaneous Telegrams.

OTSEVILLE, N. Y., March 9.—JAMES TAYLOR'S two factories for the making of knit goods and his dwelling house, in this township, three miles distant from the Otsville Railroad Station, were burned last night. The loss is from $30,000 to $40,000. There was but a small amount of insurance on the property. The disaster deprives forty operatives of employment.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, March 9.—It is now thought that the defalcation of the Treasurer of Butler County, JOHN C. LEWIS, will be about $150,000. The County Commissioners refuse to accept the Treasurer's resignation, unless his sureties will obligate themselves not to claim a release of the liabilities on such an account.... Considerable preparation has already been made for the approaching election of municipal officers. In the matter of School Trustees, the question will be "Bible" or "no Bible." Though politics will be ignored in the selection of school officers, this question will hardly affect the remainder of the officers.

ALBANY, N. Y., March 9.—About 12 o'clock to-night an entrance was effected into the office of the Gas Company in State-street by burglars, and operations began on the vaults, when they were discovered, and fled. Officer CRUTZ tried to stop them, but was disarmed. They left a complete set of burglars' tools.

BOSTON, March 9.—HORACE T. MACE, Assistant Grand Instructor to the Grand Lodge of Odd Fellows of Massachusetts, died at his residence in this city last evening.... A house at Oak Hill, Newton, occupied by HENRY SHEPARD, was destroyed by fire last night. Loss, $6,000.... The wooden store of T. R. RUSS, in Chelsea, was damaged by fire this morning to the extent of $2,000.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., March 9.—Dr. LEWIS L. MILLER, for nearly forty years a leading physician and surgeon in this city, died last night.

WALPOLE, N. H., March 9.—Walpole has voted almost unanimously in favor of uniting with Westminster in establishing a free bridge over the Connecticut River.

CHICAGO, March 9.—The planing mill of J. B. CORLISS & CO., in Chicago, was destroyed by fire at noon to-day. Loss $25,000; insurance $10,000.

BELFAST, Me., March 9.—At a Republican caucus this evening, Hon. AXEL HAYFORD was renominated for Mayor.

The Knights of Pythias—An Important Session.

Yesterday the Supreme Lodge of the Knights of Pythias refused to incorporate into the organization of the Knights of Pythias the two new degrees that have occasioned so much discussion among the fraternity.

The following officers were elected for two years: Supreme Venerable Patriarch, Wilbur H. Myers, of Pennsylvania; Supreme Chancellor, Samuel Bond, of New-Jersey; Supreme Vice-Chancellor, — Russell, of Ohio; Supreme Recording and Corresponding Scribe, Clarence M. Burton, of Washington, D. C.; Supreme Banker, William A. Porter, of Pennsylvania; Supreme Guide, John Comstock, of Connecticut; Supreme Inner Steward, Dr. L. C. Lloyd, of Kentucky; Supreme Outer Steward, David Creager, of Nebraska.

It is expected that the Supreme Lodge will adjourn on Saturday.

Skating Entertainment at the Empire Rink.

Last evening the Empire Rink, corner of Third-avenue and Sixty-third-street, was crowded by ladies and gentlemen in anticipation of a fine entertainment. The occasion was the benefit of Mr. WM. W. WALLACE, the ice manager of the rink. A large number of expert skaters were present, and a band of music and a fancy illumination contributed to the general animation. The exhibition was commenced with some comic skating on the part of Mr. BOGARTY, of Brooklyn. After which some artistic skating was witnessed, Messrs. MEAD, CUDLIPP, STONEY, HIBBARD and others, being among the contestants. Then came a blindfold wheelbarrow race, which appeared rather wild sport. Fortunately no one was hurt. Several other exercises were also included in the programme for the evening.

ALBANY.

Course of the Democrats on the Sectarian School Question.

Passage of the Canal Bill in the Assembly.

THE CHARTER AT LAST PRESENTED.

Stormy Caucuses of its Framers—The Brooklyn Charter—The Excise Bill.

From Our Own Correspondent.

ALBANY, Wednesday, March 9, 1870.

The proceedings in the Senate to-day were devoid of interest. Among the bills introduced was one by Mr. FROST, relative to fire insurance companies, which provides as follows:

"Whenever any company formed under this law shall have accumulated a fund in addition to its capital stock and all actual outstanding liabilities in excess of one-half the amount of all premiums on risks not terminated, such company may increase its capital stock from such fund, and distribute said surplus pro rate to the stockholders of such company, provided always that such surplus shall be equal to at least twenty-five per cent of the actual capital stock of said company, and shall have been approved by the Superintendent of the Insurance Department, and authorized by at least three-fourths of the Board of Directors of said company."

MONEY TO SECTARIAN SCHOOLS.

Senator WOODIN, to-day, presented a petition, signed by six hundred delegates to the New-York State Methodist Convention, asking for the repeal of the law appropriating money to sectarian schools. Senator CREAMER, the author of the new charter, and prospective candidate for next Mayor of New-York, was not present when the petition was presented; otherwise, the Senate would probably have been entertained with a repetition of his elegant speech in which he characterized the one hundred thousand signers of similar petitions throughout the State as, "senseless, houseless, penniless, howling pastors." The petition was sent to the Committee on Cities who have charge of the bill, to repeal the law. A similar bill is before the Committee on Education of the Assembly, and all efforts to induce either Committee to report the bill favorably "for consideration of the House," or in any other way, have thus far been fruitless. The Democrats are pursuing a course directly calculated to make this question a party issue, which it ought not to be, and need not have been, had they acted wisely. It is surprising so see the tenacity with which certain Catholic members of the Legislature cling to this absurd and ill-advised law, that was smuggled into last year's New-York Tax Levy by deception and trickery. They are even resorting to the contemptible expedient of threatening to kill all the little local bills of country members who favor the repeal of the law unless they cease their opposition. But they will find that this game can be played by more than one side. They have got to put themselves on record on this question, and the Sectarian School law must be repealed—if not by this Legislature, then by the very next one that the people have a chance to elect.

PASSAGE OF THE CANAL BILL.

The Canal bill came up for a third reading in the Assembly this morning, and, under the previous question moved by Mr. JACOBS, was put on its passage without debate. It received 73 votes to 50 in the negative, all the Republicans voting against it except FRANKLIN, BLOSSOM and OATMAN, from Erie County. O'KEEFE, of Brooklyn, was the only Democrat who voted against the bill. The more this bill is discussed here the more it is seen to be a fraud. It pretends to abolish the contract system, which a majority of the people of both parties desire, but it actually does no such thing. All existing contracts are liable to be continued under it, and there is nothing to prevent the Canal Board from letting as many new contracts as they wish, for the Board is expressly authorized to "determine the method or system by which the repairs of the canals shall be made and their management conducted." This clause, which was not in the original bill as introduced by Senator HARRINGTON, was evidently inserted to enable the Canal Board to relinquorate the contract system, or any other system which they might find most conducive to their own interests or those of their party. Mr. LETTERJOHN exposed the fraudulent and deceptive character of the bill when, in asking to be excused from voting, he said that, while he desired to vote to abolish the contract system, he could not vote for this bill without perpetuating the system, for there was nothing in it abolishing that system except the title.

STATE AID TO RAILROADS.

Among the bills favorably reported in the Assembly to-day were two from the Judiciary Committee granting State aid to railroads. One of them appropriates $240,000 to the Plattsburg and Whitehall Railroad, which Gov. HOFFMAN vetoed last year, and the other gives $2,500,000 to the Midland Railroad. The New-York Chamber of Commerce are in a body for the latter appropriation. It has been intimated that the Governor will not withhold his signature this year, as a Gubernatorial election is approaching, and these State appropriations for railroads are very popular in the rural districts.

THE EXCISE BILL.

The Excise bill, as amended by the Judiciary Committee, was reported to-day, ordered printed, and made the special order for 12 M. on Friday. There is a good deal of dissatisfaction with the bill, even as amended, and its passage is doubtful. It embodies the same objection that is so often urged by the New-York members against the present Excise law—that it lays down a different rule for the City from that enforced in the country. It so happens in this case, however, that the New-Yorkers demand special favors for themselves with regard to the sale of lager on Sundays, which the country members don't want.

THAT EVERLASTING CHARTER.

The new charter which the anti-Ring faction have been going to introduce every day for the last three weeks, has not yet found its way into either House. It was to have been introduced to-day sure—so its authors said—but the failure to bring about a caucus on it last night has caused a further delay, and to-morrow is now fixed as the time for its introduction. There is to be a "conference" in Speaker HITCHMAN'S room this evening, to see if some agreement cannot be arrived at with regard to it. If the new Democratic leaders don't manage the City Government, when they get control, better than they managed their charter thus far, they will fall into contempt before they have run the machine six weeks. They have made a botch of the business from the beginning, and their charter stands in eminent danger of being killed in advance by ridicule. They have carted it up to Albany and back to New-York three times, and once they took it to Troy, where JOHN MORRISSEY gave it shelter for the night. Like a child of sin, (as it is,) it has been "toted" about from city to city, and from house to house, and laid on every man's doorstep, with the humble request from its abandoned parents that somebody would take it up and adopt it. Possibly, but not probably, the foundling will be legitimated and sent back to its native city with the indorsement of the Legislature. It may be important to know, however, that it is our Governor and ex officio, as one of its sponsors said to your correspondent to-day, "if this charter don't pass, nothing shall." S.

The Charter at Last Presented—New Changes in It—Stormy Caucuses of the Democracy—The Brooklyn Charter.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

ALBANY, March 9.—The special order in the Assembly this evening was the Orleans resolutions, but, on motion of Mr. LETTERJOHN, they were laid on the table without discussion, and the House went into general orders. Near the close of the session, Mr. FERAL, who had just entered, arose and asked unanimous consent to introduce a bill, which bill turned out to be the long talked of anti-Ring Charter. He moved that it be referred to the New-York delegation as a committee, a very extraordinary reference, but no one objecting it was so referred. The charter had been made the subject of a caucus or conference of the delegation, assisted by the host of City politicians now here, which lasted three or four hours in the afternoon and evening, and a very stormy time they had of it. It is reported that they broke up three or four times in a row, but came together again, and finally, in order to avoid further scandal and save the charter and its authors from becoming a general laughing stock, they harmonized so far as to agree to introduce the thing and leave the rest to future discussion. This being decided upon it, was further agreed that the sooner the job was done the better, and thus the wandering babe then found its way into the Assembly. Some pretend to say that the delegation agreed to go for it in a body as amended in the caucus, and that they design to push it to a third reading to-morrow, but this is hardly probable, and in fact, could not be done without a gross violation of the rules of the House unless by unanimous consent, which is not likely to be obtained.

Speaker HITCHMAN, however, is equal to very extraordinary rulings, in case the emergency requires it. Several important amendments were made to the charter, in caucus, which are calculated to make it still more odious than when it last left New-York. The Central Park Commission is to be abolished, and the appointment of five Commissioners put in the hands of the Mayor and Aldermen. The Commissioners of Charities and Correction are also to receive their appointment from the same source. The Department of Inspection of Unsafe Buildings is abolished. The other features of the charter are substantially as published in to-day's TIMES.

THE BROOKLYN CHARTER.

The Brooklyn boys have caught the infection from the New-Yorkers, and are hurrying up the amendments to their charter. At a caucus held after the adjournment this evening they agreed upon changing the Water Commission by reducing the Commissioners to three in number, and their terms of office one-half, thus having one Commissioner to go out this year. His place, as well as that of all other Commissioners when their terms expire, is to be filled by the Mayor. The powers of the Commission are also to be reduced, by taking from them authority to pave streets. The caucus also agreed to have the Police Commissioners of Brooklyn, under the new charter, appointed instead of elected, which they think an improvement on the New-York plan. The Police Commissioners are to perform the duties of a Health Board.

The New-York Commissions—Democratic Caucuses on the Subject.

ALBANY, N. Y., March 9.—The New-York Democratic Senators did not meet with the New-York Democratic members of the House in caucus on the new charter, as was expected, this afternoon. Each branch, however, met by itself. Some discussion took place in the House caucus as to abolishing all commissions, it having been proposed to leave undisturbed the Central Park Commission. This was strenuously opposed, and it was insisted upon that if any of the commissions were to be abolished, all should. It was finally agreed that the Central Park Commission should be included, and such a bill will be introduced as once in the House. The Senate, it is understood, insists upon leaving the Central Park Commission undisturbed.

CANADA AND THE UNITED STATES.

Nova Scotia Opposes a Retaliatory Policy Toward the United States—This Country its Neighbor and Friend—Speech of Mr. Annand, the Provincial Treasurer, in the Legislative Council.

From the Toronto Globe.

HALIFAX, N. S., Monday, March 7, 1870.

The Legislative Council has been discussing the commercial policy of the Dominion.

Hon. Mr. ALMON called attention to Dr. TUPPER'S speech in the House of Commons advocating retaliatory measures as against the United States. He thought such arguments very inopportune at present, while the American tariff was an open question. He asked Hon. Mr. ANNAND if any intimation of American intentions toward the Dominion as gathered from his (Mr. ANNAND'S) visit to Washington.

Hon. Mr. ANNAND, Provincial Treasurer, said he heartily indorsed the sentiment with which the honorable member had commenced his remarks, and any act the threat of a retaliatory policy toward the United States was most inopportune at the present moment, when the subject of the admission of our coal into their markets free, or at a much lower rate than at present, when the introduction of our fish on better terms than heretofore was under consideration. He was sorry that Congress had also been largely directed to the admission of our agricultural products on more favorable terms than at present. With regard to the feeling in the United States, he found among statesmen—and he referred not only to Cabinet Ministers, but also to gentlemen holding seats in the Senate Chamber and in the House of Representatives—that there was a more favorable feeling toward Nova Scotia than toward Canada. He need not at present say why this was so. The question of reciprocity, however, was there embarrassed with difficulties. There was a very large Protection feeling in the Western States, and yet the Eastern States were the most anxious to have our coal admitted duty free. They, however, wanted almost everything else protected but coal, and in Congress their Representatives were met by a gentleman who told them that they wanted free trade on nothing but coal. The misfortune was that there was in Congress what is known as a "Ring," that is, a number of gentlemen bound together for certain purposes. He found this difficulty in the Committee of Ways and Means which he had the honor of addressing twice. An eminent gentleman told him that he entirely agreed with him on the coal question, but he said he was in the salt interest, and that if he voted for the admission of coal duty free, he might expect gentlemen to vote against him when the salt question came up. There was, in fact, no large Free Trade Party in the United States. The free trade feeling, however, was growing very rapidly, and even if the Congress did not at its present session repeal or lower the duties on our coal and fish, it would be still unwise to adopt a retaliatory policy. He had, while in Washington, addressed persons who were previously perfectly indifferent as to whether a duty was imposed on our coal and fish or not. He had succeeded in interesting a number of those persons in favor of Nova Scotia, and he thought it was most unfortunate and inopportune that the present time should be chosen to talk of a retaliatory policy. Talk of protecting the fisheries with six swift sailing schooners! If the British Government with all their fleet were successful in doing so it was absurd to think we could do it. It was unfortunately the fact that the United States was so great and powerful a nation that the trade of the Maritime Provinces was a matter of comparative indifference to them. The only way to deal with the people of that country was in a kindly spirit; addressing them as neighbors and friends. He, (Mr. ANNAND) had heard within the last few days that it was the intention of the Dominion authorities not only to prevent American fishermen from fishing in our waters, but also to establish the Corn laws; that is, to impose duties on American flour and meal. He believed that a number of Congressmen who were most disposed to aid us were from the corn growing States. Without the trade of the United States this country would never grow to say great commerce, for a Government representing four millions to talk of what they would do against a Government which ruled forty millions was absurd. A prohibitory or retaliatory policy would not suit Nova Scotia. It was the interest of a small country with a small population to have free trade with a large country with a large population. If the honorable member would bring in a resolution contemplating the joint action of both Houses, he, (the Treasurer,) would gladly support it. The true course was not only to advise no retaliatory policy, but to show a friendly spirit. He would repeat that there was a growing feeling in the United States in favor of free trade. He had met an eminent capitalist in whom he had explained his views, who had told him that he might not succeed this year, but that he would the next or following year.

A DOUBLE EXECUTION.

GOTTLIEB BOEHNER and ALBERT VAN BORDENBERG were hanged at Huntingdon, Penn., yesterday, for the brutal murder of the FEIGHTAL family on the 17th of November last.

THE CRIME.

The particulars of the crime, as detailed by over fifty witnesses at the trial, were as follows: Between 6 and 8 o'clock, on the night of Nov. 17, PETER FEIGHTAL, a relative of the deceased, and BENJAMIN HOOVER, started from Pleasant Grove, which is situated six miles from Huntingdon, to go to their homes. When about sixty rods from the house of the murdered family they separated, PETER cutting across the fields, and HOOVER continuing along the railroad. PETER, while passing the house, smelled the fire, and on looking into the windows, saw flames in several places. He then burst in the back door, and discovered the dead bodies lying on the floor, covered with burning bedding. He ran after HOOVER, and, on returning, both procured buckets and finally succeeded in extinguishing the various fires. The news of the affair spread rapidly, and in an exceedingly short time the house was crowded with the neighbors, who soon became convinced, from the condition of the bodies and the common which existed in every part of the dwelling, that murder, burglary and arson had been committed. The bodies were lying in different parts of the kitchen, and from the condition of the articles on the tea-table, it was evident that the murderers had commenced their work while the family were partaking of supper. Mr. FEIGHTAL had been shot in the head with a pistol, the ball entering on the left side of the face, a little in front of the ear, lodging in the skull on the right side of the head. A pistol had been held close to his face, as a powder burn was plainly discernible. His right leg, up to the thigh, and his arm, were burnt. Mrs. FEIGHTAL had been shot in the neck, the ball entering on the left side of the neck, but not passing through. She also had a wound in her head, above the right ear; in addition, her skull was knocked in. Her body and one of her arms were burned to a crisp. She also had a powder burn on the neck. SCOTT GARMAN had been shot through the head, the ball entering behind the left ear and coming out behind the right ear. His left side and leg were also considerably burned. Suspicion at once rested on the prisoners, who had been seen for two or three days previous in the neighborhood, and they were traced and captured at Altoona with the plunder upon them.

DESCRIPTION OF THE CULPRITS.

GOTTLIEB BOEHNER was born in Wirtemberg, Germany, and is about forty years of age. He stood about five feet seven inches high. He had a sandy complexion, wore sandy side whiskers and mustache, and had a sullen look. Although not so tall as ANTON PROBST, he bore a strong resemblance to that desperate homicide, and cut striking was the resemblance that two years ago, when he was being tried at Altoona for larceny, the District Attorney styled him PROBST'S counterfeit in appearance. He had, since his confinement, given considerable trouble to his jailers, and he was the author of the threatening epistles which have been issued from their cell. That he was a really desperate character is fully attested by his attack on the Deputy Sheriff on Friday morning last. ALBERT VAN BORDENBERG was also a native of Germany, having been born in Hanover in October, 1838. He was smaller in stature than his companion, and had black hair and mustache. He had a ruffianly look, though he had paled considerably since his arrest. He was not so vehement in language as BOEHNER, and manifests perfect willingness to talk about the affair. He has spent the better portion of the time, since his arrival in this country, in working in the shops of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company at Altoona.

THE HANGING.

At noon Deputy Sheriff POUSE and his assistants proceeded to the cell of the prisoners and bound them. They made no resistance and marched to the scaffold at 12½ o'clock and ascended with a firm tread. After taking their positions, prayer was offered by Rev. Mr. SYKES, after which BOEHNERG read the statement referred to yesterday. BOEHNERG said he had which he finished and denied its truth. Rev. Mr. CLARK then delivered a prayer in English and the rope was placed around their necks. The ministers and the officers bade the prisoners good-bye, and BOEHNERG in a clear, loud voice committed his soul to God. BOEHNER commenced to say something in German, when the Sheriff gave the signal and the drop was pulled. Their necks are supposed to have been broken, as no struggle was made.

THE CROWD AND THE CONFUSION.

It was estimated that nearly 10,000 people were in the town during the day. As early as 10 o'clock the different platforms, houses, trees and hills, from which a view of the execution could be had, were crowded with people of both sexes, all anxious for the revolting spectacle to take place. The day was considered as a general holiday. There was considerable drinking and battle among the crowd of night-seers, some of whom have come a distance of twenty miles. About 11 o'clock the crowd, which had steadily increased, became somewhat disorderly. Many men and boys climbed the prison walls, and were driven from their perches only by the appearance of the Sheriff on the scaffold with a pistol which he declared he'd fire if they did not retreat. While Rev. Mr. SYKES was praying, one of the platforms outside the walls, crowded with people, fell with a crash; a few people were injured thereby, but none seriously. This added to the general confusion and the horror of the scene. Not until after the bodies had been removed did the great body of the people leave their places. The execution was the most public exhibition of the sort in the State for years.

LAST STATEMENT OF BOHNER.

The following strange paper from one of the prisoners has been prepared for the public:

Beloved in the Lord—It is a matter of labor to collect my thoughts and say unto you farewell. I pray all ye who have ever done any thing wrong against me, but to pardon me, since I am about to recall and do recall all before I depart from this life, with the consciousness that I am at peace with God. I therefore who am out of Christ, I offer no comfort. I place myself immediately before the judgment-seat of God, as I approach the shores of eternity, sinner! consciously feel and commune with Him alone. The cause of my sorrows and happiness here and hereafter. I speak in this manner to God and not to man. I feel myself offended in this when men attempt to teach me. Whether I am guilty or not guilty I am not able to judge. I therefore give it to the hands of God. He is the righteous Judge. His powerful word I will soon hear, and submit myself to His righteous punishment. Beloved friends, that I may so call you, I speak in peculiar phrase, are I cannot be word of mouth tell you; you may therefore receive it from my pen, for the pain which I suffer prevents me from taking pen, for I take nothing out of this world but a simple prayer, which is, I make known my tears and complaints. Think of me here as I think of you in yonder happy world. I have no fears for the grave; I rather long for it, because I shall there find rest from pains and troubles. I dragged me into the boat. I at once took charge, ordering a man at each fall to lower when ordered, having first cut all the fastenings with knives. We stayed thus until within three or four minutes of the ship's going down. During this time the boatswain and two or three men got into the boat, making the whole number seventeen. We were still hanging at the davits when the ship began to roll in that peculiar way which presaged her foundering, and the boat was dashed against the side of the ship, threatening to dash her to pieces. I looked on the deck and saw no one abaft the mainmast, and gave the order to lower away and keep by the falls. The fall got jammed, and had to be cut away with a knife. Had we been three minutes longer at the davits we would have been left, as she went down like a shot after starting, and the suction would have carried our boat down with the wreck.

I may mention here that when the boat was brought up to the Oneida she nearly sank alongside, and on examination it was found that seven plates were broken on her starboard side, and one of the planks was knocked an inch out of place.

This must have been done by striking the side of the ship, and convinces me that we could not have saved any more in our boat, as she would have filled and gone down with a heavier load. As the coxswain cut the fall a junk was seen close by under sail. We started for her, intending to bring her alongside, if possible, and save life. Being under sail, however, and going free, she rapidly left us, and in about two or three minutes we gave it up, and on turning to go back to the ship, found she had disappeared.

We pulled to where we thought she had been, but seeing and hearing nothing, finally headed for the shore, and landed at about 8½. I at once went up to a Japanese house, engaged three guides, and started off for Yokohama, twenty-five to thirty miles distant. We crossed five mountains on the way, and had the most fatiguing tramp you can imagine. We arrived at 11 o'clock in the morning of the 26th, when I spread the news, and sent down assistance to the wreck. The vessel was found yesterday, but no bodies as yet.

The English Consular Court is investigating the matter. All the officers of the Bombay have been examined. Our turn will come to-morrow. Mr. Hunter, the American Minister, is conducting the proceedings on our behalf. We will know the result by the next Pacific mail, due in San Francisco March 21. I landed on shore in undress uniform, without a cap, and only saved my watch by having it on. I have been very much shaken by the occurrence and subsequent fatigue, but am now much better and begin to feel like myself. All Yokonama has been extremely kind to the survivors.

The feeling against the Captain of the Bombay for not stopping is intense, and if the Court attempts to whitewash him violence may be attempted. No vessel that has ever been in eastern waters was so popular as the Oneida. Even English officers say they would rather the misfortune had happened to one of their own vessels. Of twelve officers eating dinner at the time of the collision, I am the only one left."

Another View of the Action of Commander Eyre.

In its account of the collision between the Oneida and the Bombay, the Japan Gazette of the 29th January says:

"A naval Court Martial is being held, the proceedings of which we are particularly requested not to publish until the inquiry is finished. We must say, however, that the examination of Capt. EYRE, of the Bombay, gave a plain account of the proceedings, and his reasonings for coming on to Yokohama, such as must produce a very different impression on men's minds from the statement of the men who were saved from the wreck; and if confirmed by further evidence, must remove the stigma of inhumanity from his name. The excitement at Yokohama has been very great, and the feeling against the Captain of the Bombay is intense. The passengers on board the Bombay were quite surprised when they heard that such a calamity had befallen the vessel that they knew had been struck, and they all declare that they neither heard any request from the Oneida to stay by them, or the minute guns. It is, therefore, possible that Capt. EYRE, of the Bombay, may have some reason for his course of action, and it is unfair to prejudge him.

LOSS OF THE GOLDEN CITY.

Correspondence of the San Francisco Alta.

ON BOARD THE STEAMER COLORADO, }
Saturday, Feb. 26, 1870. }

The steamer Golden City left San Francisco the 12th of February with about three hundred passengers. The weather was pleasant, and everything promised a pleasant voyage. We had been out from port about thirteen days and nineteen hours, and had run about one thousand miles, when, on the morning of the 22d, the first passengers on deck were alarmed at finding the steamer running head on into a thick fog, and hearing the heavy roar of the breakers, apparently in close proximity. It was evident we were dangerously near the shore while right ahead the surf still apparent to old sailors on the coast, the density and blackness of the bank of fog hanging over Point Lazaro, were unaccountable to us who knew nothing of the coast. It was night-fall. Looking over the other bow, north and west, we could see a smooth sea and a clear horizon. Shortly before 7 A. M., just as the tables were set down to breakfast the affrighted passengers, the ship was felt stamping against the bottom with no great violence, but it sufficed to cause a rush on deck. She rode over this obstruction, and careered on with slightly diminished speed. She kept on her course, without any change of position, for about two minutes, when she struck again with great force. It seemed as if it was intended to drive her over this, but all efforts to clear it only drove her farther on. The engines were then reversed, with a view to backing off. It was too late—she was hard aground. She careened from side to side with fearful force, sending men, women and children into prostrate masses over the decks.

THE FRIGHT OF THE PASSENGERS.

It was a dreadful sight, enough to cower the bravest heart. Women were calling for their husbands, children screaming for their mothers, and others praying God to save them, in a manner beyond any adequate description. Presently the third mate came forward and began pulling the pile of life-preservers asunder. The men who had until now been quite calm, broke loose, and made such a charge as probably never was seen before, and in less time than it takes to tell it the heap was cleaned off to the floor. In the confusion such have ensued that more than half the coveted articles were rendered useless. The fog which intervened between us and the shore was gradually clearing off, and by the time we were equipped with life-preservers, put on hurriedly in all styles and positions, the eager faces turned shoreward to measure the distance to be overcome before taking the dreaded plunge saw the land. It was less than half a mile from the ill-fated vessel. It caused much coolness among the people, calming the terror-stricken, giving a promise of safety. The first officer then came among the passengers and called for a force to haul the hedge anchor aft to the stern of the ship for the purpose of carrying it into deep water in order to make an effort to get her off. A gang readily offered their services, and after some unavoidable delay succeeded in lowering it 40 or more fathoms under the charge of the second officer, HART. He carried it out a short distance, and everything being ready, the cable was bent around the capstan and put in motion. The work continued about twenty minutes, with no success. She would not budge, and on this occasion, as ever, she was fast. The Golden City, from the time she came to a final stand, had been carried, or rather driven, by each succeeding swell into the current of the breakers, and it was now beyond the power of any human agency to save her. Every change of position of her rudder and keel would be followed by tremendous heaving and lurching from side to side, threatening to pitch overboard any who did not have a firm hold of some support.

GOING ASHORE.

Previous to lowering the life-boats the first officer (GERRICK,) who worked heroically to save the ship, called for order among the crowd assembled round the stern; he told them it was determined to take to the boats; he required their help and if they would keep cool all would be saved. He appealed to them to behave like men, to stand by him till the women and children were safely landed, and finally, that he would shoot any one who attempted to get into the boats till that was fully accomplished. When they put off many feared that they would meet with loss in the angry breakers that were roaring round them. With grateful hearts we saw these overcomers every danger, jump into the surf and wade ashore. Two boats landed their human freight without accident. The life raft, manned by the Chinese crew, was then put into service. By 11 o'clock four hours from the time she struck, the passengers were landed. The boats continued hard at work during the remainder of the day taking out as much stores and provisions as could be got from the wreck. Providentially they were enabled to secure enough to place us out of absolute want. We had hard tack in abundance; each morning we were put on short allowance of water. About 1 P. M. on Wednesday, the 22d, the second mate, with a picked crew of six men, was dispatched to Cape St. Lucas, with instructions to keep in the track of the expected steamer, eight days out from Panama, due here on the morrow or the morning of the following day, (Friday.) They probably passed each other in the night. Capt. FARNSWORTH was not apprised of the accident till a later date.

DISORDER AND DRUNKENNESS.

From the time when it became dangerous to approach the scene of the wreck, the people busied themselves picking up the various articles driven in by the waves. I may here state that if a demand, or request even, had been made known among them to save the wine, apples and other stores for general good, it would have met with willing response. But not so; the only indication of any order, or means to that end, was noticeable at the Captain's head-quarters, which were round and guardianed by seamen, to prevent the too near approach of the passengers. In the meantime fifteen five hundred feet of the ship was cleared off and rope run down to the water edge. The results of this plan of operation manifested, the passengers took it in the sense that everything which came to shore belonged to the stakes below, and to seize. Whatever the intention of this scheme, it resulted unfortunately, and in the end was the source of much trouble, a portion of the crew seeing fit to work upon Crocker style, and when the liquors began to arrive the thirsty crowd would break in the heads of the barrels and swallow it by the quart. Realizing fortunes in stores and things of value, sale to hold the precious stuff, hats played a prominent part in the revelry, those who wanted a drink, and were not otherwise provided, using them instead of cups. Some drunken men could be seen reeling around in all directions; demoralization and utter selfishness were gaining strength with each arrival of plunder. It was apprehended at one time there would be bloodshed if this state of affairs was allowed to continue. It was determined if possible to put a stop to it. The third mate, with a good of volunteers, drop among the well disposed, armed with axes, broke through the casks and spilled the liquor into the water. The whisky ring murmured against this invasion of their rights, and resorted to every trick to circumvent the vigilant officer. He succeeded at last in restoring order and preventing a recurrence of the disgraceful scenes of the fore part of the day.

THE COLORADO APPEARS.

Every eye was turned seaward after order was restored, scanning the horizon for the coming steamer. This was the last day (Thursday) for the arrival of a side protect. Our fears that she might have passed the night before were painful in the extreme, though it was hoped that ere this she had been met by our boat and directed to our relief. Failing in this, the belief was entertained that the party at Point Lazaro would attract her attention. At about 2½ P. M. we were cut out about in our conjectures by tidings that she was in sight. A boat was sent out to intercept her; after an exchange of signals "in the shore she turned back and steamed round the point out of sight. We were informed that the Captain was going to make a speech and reassurance to be heard. The boat placed in a commanding position, and after a few preliminary flourishes the objects of the meeting were gone into pro bono publico. He stated that the Colorado would proceed twenty-five miles down the coast to a sheltered bay, where we could embark in perfect safety. The women and sick must be attended to. He hoped they would be found willing to do all in their power to consummate his laudable purpose, and lastly that he must be obeyed. It is likely that had any other of the officers made the appeal, the result would be unfavorable; but few tendered their services. The Captain had lost the confidence of the people. Such a demand from him was equal to a refusal on their part. The distrust of him was general. I must do him the justice to state that he was more of a Captain in his tent than on the quarter-deck. I would not say, however, that his conduct was unmanly investigation charged the last that Fox, the officer sent for $15 to CHRISTIAN FRANDSEN, in the Fourteenth-street station, but the disgraceful transaction could not be discovered. A search for the prisoners resulted in failure up to Tuesday last, when they were arrested in this City and were then fully committed for trial. Yesterday, they were fully committed for trial.

POLICE TRIALS.

A Sixteen-Shooting Complainant—Complaining a Second—A Complained Complained.

Commissioners BRENNAN and MANSFIELD met yesterday to investigate complaints against policemen.

Roundsman HENRY REYNARD, and Patrolmen JOHN W. PALMER and JOHN DUTCH, all of the Twelfth Precinct, were arraigned for an alleged neglect of duty. On the 2d inst. the Cap. BOWEN, who appears to be a newspaper well known in Harlem, attacked ALFRED FOX, a conductor on the Third-avenue, at the depot on One Hundred and Thirtieth-street, stabbing him in the hand, inflicting a slight wound. After the assault BOWEN ran into the bar-room of Blake's Hotel, with a large sword matching upon him, who were baffled by his doors being closed. PALMER and DUTCH ran up a moment after, and it was alleged by the prosecution that they made no effort whatever to arrest the assailant. But a crowd of witnesses swore positively that the officers did enter the bar-room immediately, and made all possible effort to arrest BOWEN, who had, however, escaped by a back door into a rear yard, and so into One Hundred and Thirtieth-street. He was found in that street some three hours subsequently, and arrested by REYNARD and DUTCH, and the former taking him to the station-house, made a charge of simple assault against him, in explanation of which he said that he had, up to that time, had no information that any weapon had been used, as Fox had not said anything about having been stabbed, but had only complained that he had been assaulted. The case was referred to the Board.

JOHN D. MINNE, of the Fourteenth Precinct, was charged with attempting to compound a felony, the complainant being Patrolman JUSTICE DOWLING. The case grew out of the arrest of GEO. TYE for shooting at EDWARD O'CONNOR, and it was alleged that while waiting at the clerk's desk for the complaint to be taken, MINNE endeavored to induce O'CONNOR to withdraw the charge. MINNE, DOWLING, and O'CONNOR had

NEWS OF THE DAY.

EUROPE.

A dispatch from Rome says the Pope is "temporizing," in the hope of getting a vote on the dogma of infallibility before the arrival of the French Commissioner. The German and Austrian Bishops, according to a London dispatch, will oppose the dogma in the Council. A Paris dispatch says other Catholic Powers, it is understood, will demand special representation in the Council during the discussion of the dogma.... The Spanish Cortes has voted to pay the soldiers in Cuba who share in actions against the insurgents, as for extra service....In the French Chambers yesterday, during the debate on Algeria, M. JULES FAVRE demanded that the affairs of that Province should be regulated through both Chambers and not by Senatus Consultum. M. OLLIVIER replied that the Ministry was in consultation with the Emperor as to the best method of bringing other departments of administration under the control of the Legislature....The French Police no longer permit M. ROCHEFORT's friends to visit him. It is reported that small-pox has appeared in the political prison....The Conservative Association held a banquet last night in London at which Mr. DISRAELI was unable to attend....A growing opposition to the new Education bill is said to be manifest, especially among non-Conformists. The House of Commons, last night, rejected a bill establishing a rate for the maintenance of ministers' manses in Scotland....JOHN BRIGHT has gone to Wales for his health, and is improving....A strong speculative interest in American securities was developed in London and on the Continent yesterday.

CONGRESS.

In the Senate, yesterday, Mr. FERRY, of Connecticut, presented the case of one DENNIS HATCH, an American citizen, now restrained of his liberty by the Dominican Government, it is alleged, illegally, and asked that this Government demand his release. The papers in the case were referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations. Mr. FERRY said he was of the opinion that Mr. HATCH was imprisoned "because he possessed certain knowledge concerning an effort to swindle the United States out of a large sum of money in the purchase of the island." A resolution was introduced, declaring the conduct of the Spanish in Cuba as cruel, inhuman and barbarous. The Finance Committee reported adversely on the Bonded Spirits bill. The Georgia bill, as it passed the House, was reported from Committee but not considered. The Funding bill was debated until adjournment, and during an evening session. Several amendments to the bill were adopted, but final action was not taken.

In the House petitions were presented from Pennsylvania laboring men against any change in the general tariff as suggested by the Free Trade League, and for reduction of the duty on necessary articles not produced in this country. Mr. MUNGER offered a resolution condemning the action of certain revenue officers in the City and elsewhere in abruptly seizing private property and papers, and asking for the authority under which they so proceeded. Resolutions were also introduced regarding the establishment of a postal express, and for the advancement of naval officers for distinguished services. The bill for the Air Line Railroad between Washington and this City was discussed during the morning hour. The joint resolution reported the day before in reference to economy in printing Patent-office specifications, &c., was further discussed, and finally passed without a division, with an amendment authorizing the Commissioner, to furnish specifications and drawings to public libraries on certain conditions. A bill was introduced providing for the celebration of the one hundredth anniversary of Independence by an industrial exposition in Philadelphia; and at 4 o'clock the House adjourned.

THE STATE LEGISLATURE.

In the Senate yesterday bills were reported to amend the act to complete the Gowanus Canal; to provide for the election of inspectors of election in Brooklyn, and to enroll the militia. A bill was introduced appropriating five hundred thousand dollars for the Hudson River State Insane Asylum. The Foreign Bible and the American Publication Societies Union bill passed; also the bill amending the Kings County Juries act.

In the Assembly several bills were passed, among them that relating to the business of [illegible] in New-York, Kings and Queens Counties [illegible] the abolishing the Commissioner of Deeds [illegible] engrossing system. A bill was introduced to regulate the rate of interest charged by pawnbrokers. The House took a recess until 7:30 P. M. At the evening session the Cuban resolutions were read and laid on the table, and subsequently were referred to the Committee on the Judiciary. The new bill for the reorganization of the local Government of New-York City and County was introduced, and was referred to the delegation from New-York.

The Democrats of the two branches of the Legislature held separate caucuses last night, on the subject of the new charter for New-York City. In the House caucus the abolition of the City Commissions was discussed, the exemption of the Central Park Commission being the point of difference. It was agreed that all should be abolished. The Senate, it is said, desires to leave the Central Park Commission undisturbed.

Democratic Canal Reform.

Experience has not justified any very lively hope of reform in the management of our State canals at the hands of the Democrats, and we have not, therefore, been disappointed at the action of the Legislature thus far during the present session. Considerably more than half the paid attendance of members has passed, and the only progress made has been to bring Senator HAUSENBURGH's bill "to abolish the Contracting Board and the system of repairing the canals by contract" to the point of probable speedy passage. A cursory examination of that bill is sufficient to convince us that the "Canal Ring" has no reason to find fault with it; in fact, we are informed that Senator JARVIS LORD, of Rochester, one of the shrewdest and heaviest contractors in the State, is strongly in favor of the bill, as is very natural he should be.

The suspicions engendered by such interested favor are fully justified by the bill itself. It repeals all existing laws for keeping the canals in repair by contract, and abolishes the Contracting Board; but it is careful not to invalidate existing contracts, except as hereinafter stated, or to impair the rights of contractors to damages. It provides that all existing contracts may be surrendered, and thereupon shall be annulled. This, of course, is intended to relieve such individuals as have made unprofitable bargains with the State; but those who have secured fat jobs are protected by the next section, which provides that the Canal Board may in their discretion cancel such contracts as shall not be surrendered, and that the contractor shall thereupon receive back the money deposited as security for its faithful performance, the amount actually earned under it, the value of permanent improvements made, and a fair compensation for tools, materials and implements. Right here is where the Ring will come in for a rich harvest. All these allowances are left to the discretion of the Canal Board, and those who can recall the result of the "stop and tax" policy of 1842, and the enormous damages and compensation paid to contractors, will readily see that under the present law their profits will be far greater if their contracts are annulled than they would be if permitted to execute them. When it is remembered that all but about [illegible] of the existing contracts contain a clause authorizing the State to annul them at pleasure, the true significance of the above proviso can be better understood.

Senator HAUSENBURGH's bill further provides for carrying into effect the suggestion made by Governor SEYMOUR to the Rochester Convention of the Commercial Union. It provides that there shall be a canal patrol or police, unlimited in number, and unrestricted as to pay, to be appointed by the Canal Board, and subject to the control of the Commissioners. Here is an almost unlimited source of patronage for the party, and a field of corruption rich enough to satisfy the most unscrupulous Ring. The people may rest assured that the opportunities which it presents will not be neglected so long as the State shall be under Democratic rule.

There are several other provisions of the bill of similar tenor, but of minor importance, which we will not allude to. The worst feature connected with it is that it is sure to be passed. It has already gone through the Senate, and on Tuesday was ordered to a third reading in the House by a strict party vote, and without amendment. So much for Democratic protestations of friendship to the canals, and of a determination to reform its management.

The Loss of the Oneida.

The interesting letter from Surgeon JAMES SUDDARDS, which we publish in another column, supplies all the information which is necessary to enable us to form an opinion on the cause of the Oneida disaster. We have still to hear the full story of the Captain of the Bombay, but his short statement doubtless contains all the important facts which can be brought forward on his behalf. He did not see the lights of the Oneida, owing to the particular position of the vessels at the time they approached each other. When he found that he had actually struck her, the shock seemed so slight that he felt assured no serious harm had been done to the vessel, and so he continued on his course. This is the substance of his statement, and it leaves him in a plight in which no true sailor will ever desire to find himself.

Dr. SUDDARDS enables us to arrive at a more vivid realization of the scene. The Bombay struck the Oneida full on the starboard quarter, and cut everything clean away, "as with a chisel." As we knew before, from the hour at which the disaster occurred, the wardroom dinner was just over. The collision swept away all before it, and when the officers and crew ran upon deck they saw a large steamer getting away from them as fast as she could. She was hailed by the officer on duty, but took no notice. Dr. SUDDARDS observed that a boat on the port quarter was still in its place, and that twelve or fourteen men had got in her. He and a few others joined this number, and after waiting until it would have been fatal to have delayed a moment longer, they cut the fastenings with their knives, and managed to get clear away.

As the party left the ship they saw a junk sailing past, and did their best to overtake it. But this craft declined to assist them, and when they turned round the Oneida had sunk beneath the waves. Less than a quarter of an hour had elapsed since she was first struck. "Of twelve officers eating dinner at table," writes Dr. SUDDARDS, with involuntary pathos, "I am the only one left."

A Court of Inquiry was at once summoned, and in due time we shall hear all that is to be said in extenuation of the Captain of the Bombay. There is no finer service in connection with any foreign mercantile marine than the "Peninsular and Oriental," and the Captains are specially chosen from hundreds of competitors. As we have already said, the Captain of the Bombay has acted in a manner which is happily almost without precedent. The passengers on the steamer are said to be ready to testify that the shock was not felt at all on board the Bombay—and it is now quite certain that the Captain and passengers were at dinner. On the "P. & O." ships the chief officers also sit down at the saloon tables, when it does not happen to be their watch. We may, therefore, infer that the Bombay was in the hands of a subordinate at the time of the collision. But this would be no palliation for the Captain's conduct in steering away after he knew he had struck the Oneida. Of course he was not aware of the injury he had done, but it was his duty to stop and ascertain. His neglect to do that has thrown over four score families into mourning, and involved him in an act which most people everywhere will regard as a crime.

The Piegan Slaughter and Its Apologists.

We can well understand how a friendly fraternal feeling, and a certain professional pride, quite proper in its place, should lead some of the army officers in Washington to uphold and approve the late massacre in Montana. They feel, and we all feel, that the Indians are a cruel and relentless foe, who must be struck hard if struck at all, and that their brutalities are as exasperating as they are hideous. For all that, the Piegan slaughter, as actually conducted, seems to us wholly indefensible.

It is indefensible on two grounds, first, by reason of its needless barbarity and brutality, and second, in its retrospective influence on our new Indian policy—it was, in that, both a crime and a blunder. As to the first point, we need add little to what has already been said, and little to the emotions which the recital of facts arouses. We need not accept entirely Mr. VINCENT COLYER's version of the affair, especially as Gen. SHERIDAN has vehemently protested against its being regarded as the true story. But how much better is the official statement made to Gen. SULLY? The latter tells us that, of the 173 killed only thirty-three were men, "and of these fifteen only were such as are called by them young or fighting men," i. e., between the ages of twelve and thirty-seven. Out of the rest, no less than ninety were women, and fifty were children all under twelve years of age, "and many in their mother's arms." Does this account help matters at all? Gen. SHERIDAN replies by showing how "at least 300" whites, men, women and children, have been murdered, over or less heavily, by Indians since 1866. Does the recommendation of all the Indian chieftains for eight years throughout all the Indian command, offset this wholesale slaughter of 140 women and children in a single camp of a single tribe? Or is it pretended that the Indian murders are compensable?—for surely we are not to regard that as virtuous in us which we shudder at in savages. Had the women and children been spared, and the braves been slaughtered—even though the affair was so one-sided that we lost but a single man—everybody would have applauded, as in the raids of CUSTER and CARR. But it is yet to be shown how, granting that the expedition was needful, non-combatants could not have been captured instead of killed.

It is, however, chiefly because of its injury to our new Indian policy that we now review this affair. The new policy has been distinctively announced as one of peace, protection and civilization. This policy could not and cannot furnish a cloak for Indian marauding; misdeeds of that nature must still be punished by the sword. But it is of the highest importance that in our hostile, as in our pacific dealings with the Indians, we have right on our side. The Blackfeet had committed many crimes in Montana, and Winter was the season for striking them; but by striking them as Red Horn's camp was struck the old anti-military spirit is roused, and the resolute efforts of the Administration to keep peace on the Plains through army intervention may very likely be foiled. It would be hardly possible, for example, to transfer at this moment the Indian Bureau to the War Department; and the sincerity of the desire expressed by officers for peace on the Plains becomes widely, though we think unjustly, distrusted.

The only plan finally possible for the Administration or the army is one of peace and protection. Mr. WILSON's bill for promoting the civilization of the Indians and preparing them for the rights of citizenship, strikes the key-note of the true policy. Of course this is only possible with peaceful Indians, and the wild tribes must be treated otherwise. But we must not forget that those we now call "peaceful" were once "wild," and it is all but a question of degree and of time. The policy we cannot listen to, even for the wild Indians, is extermination; and any movement looking toward the latter should be promptly discountenanced and disavowed.

New-Jersey Taxation.

It is the boast of our New-Jersey neighbors that their State and County taxes are low, and that when municipal taxes are high they exhibit a quid pro quo in well-constructed improvements. Indeed, in the matter of local taxation they are not as liberal as they should be, for city improvements are often improperly based upon what the property can afford, rather than upon an imperative necessity for expenditure.

The State tax of New-Jersey is a mere bagatelle. Aside from its war debt sinking fund tax, which levies three hundred thousand dollars annually to extinguish a debt now less than two million dollars, the only State tax levied for current expenses of the Government is one of sixty thousand dollars. County taxes are correspondingly low, but, like municipal taxes, too low for the best interests of the State. Roads are neglected, bridges are often out of repair, and it is only since the recent infusion of a generous flow of warm New-York blood into Jersey conservatism that any broad system of improvements has been attempted.

Yet the small assessments made by State and County do not bring with them that ineffable peace which a slave of the New-York Ring might suppose. Our Jersey neighbors are in a state of profound botherment as to the method of equalizing the collection of the moneys needed for the current expenses of the State, in all about seven hundred thousand dollars, or, say seventy cents per capita of the population. At present more than one-third—almost one-half—is paid by Camden and Amboy, or as now called, the "Consolidated Companies." More than another third is made up from receipts from other railroads and corporations, and the small remainder from official fees of one sort or another, excepting the sixty thousand dollars actual tax above mentioned. This condition seems to be Elysian. Unluckily it is not.

Gov. RANDOLPH, in his annual message, fully accepts the theory that corporate capital should pay all, or nearly all, the expenses of the State, leaving real estate, the "great agricultural interest," untrammeled. But he sees the inequality of the present system, and would propose to relieve it by extending the system of taxation over all the corporations of the State, especially "foreign corporations." Whether that epithet includes all the numerous railroads, banks, insurance companies, and manufactories conducted in New-Jersey upon capital belonging in New-York and Pennsylvania, we are not informed. If it does, Gov. RANDOLPH labors under the singular misapprehension that foreign investments made in New-Jersey are not a source of strength to the State.

Mr. LEON ABBETT, the Speaker of the House, has another theory. He would put the levies mostly upon real estate, exempting corporations from any special assessments for privileges granted, and even offering inducements for foreign capital to come into New-Jersey and build it up to greatness. He paints a vivid picture of the consequences of such a policy, added to the advantage New-Jersey holds in the fact that it is between two great commercial States, one of which must expand westward, while the other needs room on the eastern shore of the Delaware. The two policies are diametrically opposite, though both originate from distinguished Democratic sources. One would make personal property support the State. The other would give to capital almost an entire exemption, in the belief that a little favoritism shown to it would develop the values of real estate to a degree that would more than compensate the latter for its apparently undue burdens of taxation. Whether Gov. RANDOLPH or Mr. ABBETT is nearer the truth, this question deserves [illegible]

[illegible] Amongst [illegible] the money has been [illegible] protected the labor [illegible] and family establishments into "Arcadian dispositions" a vast measure of that wonderful increase in New-Jersey real estate valuations which, in order of a more extensive and specific basis, is still in operation.

Some of the New-Jersey journals—among them the Newark Advertiser—have a theory which is neither Gov. RANDOLPH's nor Mr. Speaker ABBETT's, nor does it preserve the conservative traditions of the past. They urge that the taxation or the exemption of special interests is always an error, and that taxes should be laid "flat" upon all forms of property except those employed for purely beneficial purposes. The "Consolidated Companies" last year paid to New-Jersey, directly and indirectly, $338,993 48, out of the $376,608 73 required for the State fund. Can it be wondered that the companies own New-Jersey when they pay more than half its current expenses? Can it be wondered that the Legislature has just refused a charter to a competing road when the existing one is so rich in revenue? The Amboy people come with a moral prestige. For every concession they make to competition they can demand more than an equivalent in a reduction of their tribute to the State.

Not only in this, but in other respects, the Companies have the advantage in the argument—an unwise and unjust advantage. Some other railroads pay no tax at all, though they pay ten per cent. dividends to stockholders. Still others are to pay when their dividends exceed seven per cent. per annum—a very indefinite condition so long as stock can be watered. But the fact is there, and the Companies are the patrons of the State, assuming the rights of patronage. They cling to their taxation as a man would to his cash box. They have no desire whatever to change their relations. A year ago their monopoly expired by limitation. To-day it exists as strongly as ever by virtue of the taxation they pay—the quiet shrewdness with which they compel freight and passengers to pay it for them being wholly ignored. They have a safe game as long as it lasts.

What New-Jersey needs is a radical reform in taxation,—an entire departure from the traditions of the past; an open dissolution of the existing partnership between the State and the Consolidated Companies, and a fair "flat" taxation upon all values, whether real or personal, or whether held by corporations or individuals. Personalty easily evades the assessor. Real estate is always tangible. Corporate property need never escape. If New-Jersey would abandon that sweet morsel of "receipts from the Consolidated Companies," tax them fairly, and tax all alike, it would soon find that the rivalry of interests would equalize the assessments, and, with a Government as pure as it is now, would garner within its bounds a harvest of that foreign capital which Gov. RANDOLPH would tax and Speaker ABBETT would subsidize.

Congressional Printing.

Now that retrenchment in the public expenditures is the order of the day, we hope that the matter of public printing at Washington will be thoroughly investigated and reformed. There are many large leaks in that department which should be stopped, and we are glad to see that the subject is being seriously discussed in Congress. Millions of dollars are expended every year in the production and distribution of bulky volumes of very limited interest or value, the great majority of which find their way to the paper mills without perusal. The mechanical report of the Patent-office is an illustration of this. It is largely made up of engravings illustrative of the inventions which are patented, and is published at a cost of $234,000 a year, or one-half of the entire expenditure for printing ordered by the House. The volume possesses a very limited interest, and from the manner in which it is gotten up, an equally small value to the public. It is now proposed to print the report in a more condensed and intelligible form, and to issue but a small edition—copies to be deposited in public libraries and sold to individuals at cost. In this way it is estimated that an annual saving of $174,000 a year can be effected on this report. A similar course might be adopted with reference to several other expensive Government reports, without detriment to the public interest. The agricultural report is an expensive humbug, and might profitably be curtailed in size and quantity. In fact, very few of the large public documents are remunerative in the information which they convey to the people, and would serve their ostensible purpose equally well if their distribution were confined to public libraries and those individuals who are willing to pay cost price for copies.

We appeal earnestly to Congress to apply a vigorous retrenchment to this matter of public printing, and finally to crown their labors by abolishing the franking privilege, and thus relieve the mails from a monstrous burden.

Alabama Claims in a New Shape.

Judge BLATCHFORD's decision in the suit brought against Mr. LAIRD to recover damages for the loss of a vessel which was burned by the Alabama, is important. It does not indeed decide the question of law as to the liability of Mr. LAIRD for the acts of that vessel, for the question which came up was only as to the right of the injured parties to compel Mr. LAIRD to appear and answer to their claim in a court of admiralty, by attaching his property. It involved, therefore, the question whether our Courts of Admiralty could ever entertain suits against foreigners who did not come themselves within the reach of process. That is a question in which a great many interests and a very large amount of money are involved. We can recall one case, now pending, in which nearly half a million dollars are involved, whose result would be determined by this question; and with the assent of shipping coming into this port which belongs to foreign corporations, who could only be reached by the process of attachment, cases must be contin- [illegible] The practice of issuing attachments in [illegible] Admiralty Court in this district that it is somewhat a matter of surprise that the power of the court in this regard should have been questioned. It has probably been caused by the decision in the District Courts of California and Connecticut, holding that attachments could not be issued against the property of inhabitants of the United States who were not residents of the district where the attachment was issued. But those cases were based on a clause in the Judiciary act of 1789, and did not present the question which was involved in Mr. LAIRD's case. They also rested, as will be seen by Judge BLATCHFORD's decision, on a misapprehension of a clause in CURRER's Admiralty Practice. However that question may be finally settled, it could not affect this case, and unless Mr. LAIRD has some more substantial defense on the merits to this claim of Mr. CUSHING than the grounds on which he tried to set the attachment aside, we fancy that the latter will have his part of "the Alabama claims" disposed of satisfactorily long before his companions in misfortune arrive at that desirable result.

There are complaints that Commissioner DELANO, in the interpretation of the Income Tax law, almost invariably adopts the construction which bears most harshly upon the tax-payer. Some of his recent decisions admit of this view. Perhaps Mr. DELANO desires to hasten the abolition of the tax by rendering its administration as odious as possible.

The policy of retaliation with which the authorities of the Dominion threaten us does not find favor in the Nova Scotia Legislature. In our news columns will be found the response of Mr. ANNAND, the head of the Nova Scotia Cabinet, to the Ottawa propositions. Mr. ANNAND recently visited Washington to suggest a reduction of our coal duty; and his remarks evince a sound and liberal estimate of the situation. To Nova Scotia this country is a more desirable friend—commercially speaking—than the Dominion ever can be.

Gen. BRECKENRIDGE shows good sense, and a willingness to extirpate the last signs of rebellion, by his manly denunciation of the Kuklux thieves and cut-throats, and his expressed desire to aid in bringing them to justice. The South has no worse enemies than those who apologize for the Kuklux outrages by attempting to explain them away. They constitute a very ugly fact in Southern society, and their suppression is essential to the peace which must precede prosperity.

The "gold" movement seems now to have reached the equatorial parts of the fiscal world, and there is little latitude either way for those fluctuations which have tossed the speculators about so much latterly. The men of the gold rooms seem to be in what a sailor would call "the doldrums," where the trade winds do not blow, and cannot be whistled up. For the rest, it is certainly curious enough, after all the million arguments on the subject of specie payments, and the sure and undeniable modes of coming to that end, to see the thing itself coming about in its own way without any legislative help, and making obsolete such a quantity of the best financial arguments.

Western papers are quoting Mr. CHASE as Secretary of the Treasury, against Mr. CHASE as Chief-Justice, on the legal tender question, and really putting him in an awkward position. An old letter has been republished, written by the Secretary in 1862, urging the passage of the Legal-Tender act as a pressing necessity, and requesting the Legislature of Ohio to instruct the Senators and Representatives from that State to vote for it, which was done. The letter takes precisely the opposite ground to that recently assumed by the Chief-Justice in his opinion declaring contracts made previous to 1862 payable in gold. We are not an advocate for consistency to the extent of clinging to errors, or resisting new convictions, but we cannot resist the impression that Mr. CHASE was nearer right in 1862 than he is in 1870.

The Secretary of the Interior expresses a wise and humane, not to say Christian opinion, when he says it would be cheaper to feed during their natural lives all the adult Indians we are now overrunning, and await the growth of their children brought up to agriculture, than carry on a general war with them for a single year in their own fierce and exterminating manner. It does not well become a great nation, which has done so much to liberate the African race in this country, to tyrannize over the remnant of the red men—the aborigines of this continent.

The old adage that "it is a poor rule that will not work both ways," is suggested by a bill now before the Assembly at Albany. It provides that "tenancy by courtesy" shall be revived as an offset to the wife's dower; that the husband shall not be liable for debts contracted by his wife before marriage; nor for debts contracted by her subsequently without his consent, except for the support of herself and children; that he may sell his real estate without the consent of his wife, or her joining in the conveyance, and that at his death the wife shall have dower only in the real estate of which he shall die seized. The bill certainly seems equitable, in view of recent legislation in favor of married women. There is no good reason why the rights of married men should not be protected to precisely the same extent as those of their wives.

Apropos of the "great popular reaction," of political sentiment over which the Democratic Press is just now jubilating, and which is predicated on the result of a few town elections, we can offer headed Republican victories in several municipal canvasses which have recently taken place. Rochester has just elected a Republican Board of Aldermen, and Monroe County a Republican Board of Supervisors. Batavia, in Genesee County, has elected the entire Republican ticket; Camden, N. J., Des Moines and Cedar Rapids, Iowa, and Monticello, Ill., have done likewise. We do not claim that these are very important indications of political sentiment on general issues, or that they are to be relied upon as indications of continuing Republican strength; but they are equally so as the results of the recent town meetings, over which the Democrats have just gone into ecstasies. There was, however, a deal of solid political significance in the result of Tuesday's election in New-Hampshire. There party lines were closely drawn, inconsistencies of a general character contended. The election of a United States Senator, and the popular indorsement of the national Administration, were involved, and the result may properly be interpreted as a fair and legitimate popular expression [illegible]

[illegible] is the prominent thought in regard to it. The [illegible] is, in fact, a [illegible] process.

If, as some admiralty people seem to think, our maritime admiralty has been driven from the North Atlantic, we are sure without a hope that another great trade way on that ocean may largely restore matters—that the proposed new line of the Central Atlantic may come into existence to redress the balance of the old." The logic of necessity is in favor of it, since it would lead us directly into the midst of the Mediterranean States, and not that alone, but connect, on the same line, with the trade of the further East through Suez. It is, in fact, a route that has already made its own track under cash, and only wants steam to become one of the greatest of commercial highways. The arguments of tonnage, of course, of cost cheaply delivered at Trebizon, Venice, Trieste, Alexandria, Constantinople, are good, and hard to gainsay; and it is an enterprise to take the imagination of the most practical people. Whether it may succeed at once, or grow slowly, it seems certain of ultimate success, having all the "material guarantees" of two continents to encourage it.

The moderate course of M. OLLIVIER seems to be producing the natural result. The Rochefort faction is passing into the region of the ridiculous, and there is scarcely anything left for his admirers to do. A few processions in his honor create no harm, and if they do express their lyric determination to "march on to liberty or death," they arrive at a different destination. Besides, the "Marseillaise" is a fine piece of music, and the Parisians are fond of hearing it in their streets. One circumstance indicates the temper of the city, more, perhaps, than anything else. The formation of a "Friends of Order" society shows that Paris is tired of being disturbed by continued alarms, and is resolving to put an end to them by force of public opinion.

The labor organizations have frequently been reminded that there are limits beyond which their demands cannot safely pass, and that there is a last resort of which employers can avail themselves. The removal of the foundries from Peekskill furnishes an illustration which is also a warning. What the particular demands in their case are is, speaking generally, of little consequence. It is plain that they could not be acceded to without serious injury to the owners' business. Otherwise, the transfer of the foundries would not be decided upon. An important interest is driven from Peekskill by sheer necessity; the town is made to suffer permanently in consequence; and a large number of families will be compelled to seek subsistence elsewhere.

AMUSEMENTS.

Dramatic.

"LOST AT SEA" AT WALLACK'S THEATER.

On the first production of "Lost at Sea" at Wallack's Theater, we intimated that the drama contrasted unfavorably with Mr. ROBERTSON's pieces, and generally with the elegant order of entertainment it has been the worthy pride of the management of this house to produce. Since that time we have once or twice expressed distaste for the scene that constitutes the leading feature of the play, the apparent danger and the ultra-melodramatic character of which seemed to us objectionable and out of keeping with the position of the theater and the talent of its performers. Our impression as regards the risk received confirmation by a sad and almost fatal accident that occurred on the representation of "Lost at Sea" at Springfield on Monday night. It is nevertheless natural to suppose that in a small country theater, with a limited force and indifferent appliances, the peril might be far greater than in so complete an establishment as Mr. WALLACK'S. An investigation of the means by which the fire scene is presented at the latter theater discloses at once the simplicity of the means and the multiplicity of the precautions taken to avoid an accident. The central point of the conflagration is comparatively distant from actors and canvas, and were the flames from any unforeseen cause to be forced beyond their prescribed limits, the presence of a force of firemen sufficiently well supplied with water to suppress the most genuine outbreak would apparently bring it promptly to a close. To these facts ascertained by a visit to the theater arranged by the management beforehand—we have much pleasure in testifying. We feel bound, however, to add that our opinion respecting the literary demerits and unsuitable locality of "Lost at Sea" remains unchanged, and that, for the sake of the true and permanent interest of this deservedly favorite house, we shall be glad to see it withdrawn from the bills.

GOTTSCHALK MEMORIAL CONCERT.

The promised Gottschalk Memorial Concert occurred at Association Hall last evening. It was memorial in name rather than in fact. A reunion in which the poetic phrasing of BETTINI, the crystalline purity of MILLS, and the piano-pyrotechny of SANDERSON, would have been displayed in turn might have brought back occasional reminiscences of the charm of the dead artist's performances to those persons who had heard him in a not distant past, and would have enlightened those who had not as to his genius as an executant and composer. Judging from yesterday's experience, however, the temperament and mechanical skill of Mr. J. EDWARD HAMER, who gave the concert, were alike unequal to the task. The programme was the most representative part of the whole affair, and, without further comment, we must say, bearing in mind how little was done toward recalling the memory of the dead, and possibly how much was effected, where no recollections existed, to belittle it, that we wish the portion ascribed to GOTTSCHALK had been the work of another, and—in view of the questionable worth of the remainder—that the remainder had been GOTTSCHALK'S own. The artists cooperating with Mr. HAMER were Mme. MARIE SARGOTTI, Mr. A. L. MORA and Mr. J. LEWENBERG. The pluck and merit of all had abundant recognition at the hands of a numerous audience, so that it will be understood that the unfavorable opinion expressed above in regard to Mr. HAMER relates exclusively to his fitness to fulfill a promise that perhaps no single artist could have prudently undertaken to realize.

S. P. WARREN'S ORGAN RECITAL.

Mr. WARREN, assisted by Miss NEVIN STERLING, gave the last of his second series of organ recitals in Association Hall yesterday afternoon. The audience, we are glad to note, was larger than on any previous occasion. The programme embraced selections from SCARLATTI, BACH, HANDEL, SCHUMANN, SPOHR and LISZT. The Concerto No. 5 in F, by HANDEL, the andante movement in the Sonata No. 2, in A Minor, by VAN EYKEN, and a concert fantasia in D Minor by VOLKMAR, claim especial notice for beauty and effect. Miss STERLING won a well deserved encore for her admirable interpretation of LISZT's ballad, "Es War Ein Konig in Thule," and a concertante by HAUPTMANN. We are glad to observe that the regret we expressed last week at the prospect of this being the last recital, was premature, and that a new series will be commenced ere long. Mr. WARREN is engaged in a good enterprise, and merits all proper encouragement. It is fortunate that we have a few thorough musicians in the City, with the requisite courage to resist the demand for "sensational music," and in the end their efforts will surely be crowned with the only kind of success worth being proud of. While we may weary at too much solid food, it is certainly better for us than the wretched fizzy compounds which leave behind them no pleasurable after taste. And we say again that while Mr.

WARREN may not have had the "genius," he certainly [illegible] and [illegible] to be, in [illegible] is as deplorable as when it exists in relation to any other subject. And we propose [illegible] as long as the tendency is yielded to by those who discourage his self-efforts in the embarrassing face that "eccentricity."

One Hundred and Four Years Old.

A breakfast-party took place yesterday under circumstances which have not been very common since the flood. Noah and his friends may have been so accustomed to "keep up" their own existence as to have made little fuss on such occasions; but since then the human race has been more moderate in its expectations of life—and even those diminished expectations are not always gratified. What a man thinks of this world after wandering up and down and going to and fro in it for a hundred years, we can only conjecture; but from all appearances the game can scarcely be worth the candle. In the antediluvian era, juveniles of two hundred or three hundred years must have had some better way of passing the time than going to bed at 8 in the evening, with eighty-five grains of opium stowed away safely inside them, and then getting up at 3 in the morning to breakfast. These are the original habits of Capt. LAFRUSSERS, aged one hundred and four, in whose honor a charming breakfast party was given yesterday by Gen. DE PEYSTER. To rise every morning at 3 o'clock is a development of human happiness which it scarcely seems worth living upwards of a century to realize. We have known people to find out a better way of enjoying themselves before they had passed thirty years in this perplexing and uncertain world. TITHONUS lived longer than Capt. LAFRUSSER, and was after all very glad to be changed into a grasshopper. It is very discouraging to young folks of seventy, five or eighty, to see that the net result of living on to a hundred is going to bed just as the rest of the world is beginning to spend a pleasant evening. However, Capt. LAFRUSSER is evidently a hale old gentleman, if he will allow us to call him old, and he seems to be gifted with that contented mind, which, as we know on high authority, is better even than General DE PEYSTER's breakfasts, because it is a "continual" feast. Every guest wished the excellent Captain hundreds of happy returns of the day, and there seems a fair probability of their wishes being realized. Among other young gentlemen whom Gen. DE PEYSTER invited to meet Capt. LAFRUSSER yesterday, were Gen. HOOKER, Gen. CULLUM, Gen. WARREN, Gen. BARNUM, Gen. YOUNGS, Gen. MCDOWELL, Gen. PEARSONTON, Major BUNDY, Mr. HAMERSLEY and Mr. ROOSEVELT. The party broke up shortly before the hour at which Capt. LAFRUSSER usually retires for the night.

Northern Pacific Railroad.

The stockholders of the Northern Pacific Railroad held their annual meeting in this City yesterday, when the following gentlemen were elected as the Board of Directors:

J. Gregory Smith	St. Albans, Vt.
Richard D. Rice	Augusta, Me.
Thomas H. Canfield	Burlington, Vt.
William E. Onthon	Chicago, Ill.
J. Edgar Thomson	Philadelphia, Penn.
George W. Cass	Pittsburg, Penn.
William G. Fargo	Buffalo, N. Y.
Benjamin P. Cheney	Boston, Mass.
Frederick Billings	Woodstock, Vt.
William Windom	Winona, Minn.
Samuel M. Felton	Philadelphia, Penn.
Charles B. Wright	Philadelphia, Penn.
James Stinson	Chicago, Ill.

The directors subsequently completed the organization of the Company by electing J. GREGORY SMITH, President; R. D. RICE, Vice-President; A. H. BARNEY, Treasurer; SAMUEL WILKESON, Secretary. Arrangements were also made for the immediate and energetic prosecution of the great work. The first section to be undertaken will be from Duluth to Red River, and the expectation is that portion of the road will be constructed before the close of the present year.

The Post-Office Stations—Important Changes in their Location—New Districts.

An important measure is soon to be carried into effect in this City, by Postmaster JOHNS, respecting the location of the branch offices, and the limits of their several districts. The Stations are not situated at present to the best advantage for the prompt distribution of the mails, nor are they located at the most convenient points for the public. New limits have accordingly been decided upon for the districts, and the various offices are to be moved to the most central position in each district. The following are the districts as rearranged:

The General Post-office will supply the part of the City below Canal-street, except on the west side above Franklin-street and West Broadway, and on the east side above the Bowery and Catharine-street.

District B is east of the Bowery, between Catharine-street and Houston-street.

District C is west of Fifth-avenue, below Twentieth-street and above the line of Districts A.

District D is east of Fifth-avenue, below Twentieth-street, and above the line of District B.

District F is east of Fifth-avenue, between the same streets.

District G is west, between Forty-fourth and Seventieth streets.

District O is east, between the same streets.

District I is west, between Seventieth and One Hundred and Tenth streets.

District H is east, (Yorkville.)

District L is Harlem and Manhattanville.

District M is Carmansville.

By this arrangement the Stations will supply equal sections of the City on the east and west side, and will be about equi-distant from each other. The work of the carriers will also be equalized. The branch offices will also be moved to new and central points in the districts, as soon as desirable places can be found for them.

Owing to the increase of population and the requirements of the City, this change has become necessary, and will doubtless be found a great improvement over the present distribution of the Stations. It is expected that the change will be completed by the beginning of Summer.

Funeral of Lieut.-Col. Head, of the Fourteenth Brooklyn Regiment.

Yesterday afternoon the obsequies of the late Lieut.-Col. HENRY T. HEAD, of the Brooklyn Fourteenth Regiment of Militia, took place from the First Universalist Church, in Greene-avenue, near Adelphi-street. Long before the arrival of the dead the avenue and sacred edifice were thronged by friends and spectators. In the building were assembled a large number of the late volunteer army and State militia officers, among whom were Maj.-Gen. Woodward and staff, Brig.-Gen. Dakin and staff, Gen. Cooke, Gen. Fowler, Col. Mason, Col. Briggs, Col. Trowbridge, Maj. Baldwin, Maj. Schurig, and Post Wadsworth of the G. A. R., commanded by Capt. Pollard. The services were conducted by Rev. Mr. BOOTH, Pastor of the church. The deceased soldier was dressed in full uniform. Over the lower part of the coffin was spread the American flag, and on it the sword, sash and cap of the departed. At 4 o'clock the coffin was closed and borne by six Sergeants to the caisson which was to bear it to the tomb. The bearers placed their sacred burden on the caisson, and the funeral train slowly and sadly wended its way along Adelphi-street, Fulton-avenue, Hanson-place, Atlantic-avenue, Flatbush-avenue and Fifth-avenue to Green-Wood Cemetery.

On arriving at the cemetery the body was carried to the family plot by the Sergeants and interred. The last roll of the drum and fusillade of honor were heard as the grave closed over the gallant soldier, and he was left alone to rest in solemn quiet.

Among the minor results of the division of Virginia is the appointment of the ante-bellum State debt between West Virginia and the reconstructed State. Commissioners have been appointed by the authorities at Richmond and Wheeling to confer and report, and it is anticipated that a speedy and satisfactory arrangement will be arrived at. The Richmond Dispatch says that the authorities of West Virginia have manifested a commendable spirit of fairness, and a disposition to deal equitably, which will go far to expedite the negotiation which it was feared would be attended with great difficulty.

The Orange Charter Election.

At the charter election held at Orange yesterday Mayor FERRY, Democrat, was re-elected over JARED POTTER, Republican, by 262 majority. The Council stands five Democrats to four Republicans. The Board of Education stands five Democrats to three Republicans and one Independent. The Democrats elected two out of the three Aldermen, gained two Chosen Freeholders, and made a corresponding gain in the remaining offices.

WASHINGTON.

The Funding Bill Again—Its Fate Still Hanging in Doubt—The Pacification Policy—Status of the Minority Amendment Question—Miscellaneous.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 10.—The Internal Revenue Bureau is preparing for the most thorough assessment of the income tax that has ever been made. Special instructions are being issued to Assessors to see to it that every person believed to be in the receipt of income or property on which tax should be paid, be assessed. If the Government demand, and required to answer the questions of the tax list in a full and satisfactory manner. The intention of Mr. DELANO is to secure the collection of this tax, as far as possible without evasion, so that its burden may be more equally borne than hitherto. People of all classes, districts, who have made anything over and above the usual exemption during the past year, may as well begin to get their answers ready, as Assessors will begin during the present month, and will prosecute with vigor.

THE FUNDING BILL.

The Funding bill was taken up in the Senate to-day and thrown open to debate, after a motion to take a recess had to vote on the various amendments at 4 o'clock had prevailed. Up to 9 o'clock P. M. only three proposed changes had been voted on, the principal one, being the refusal to increase the rate of interest in the second section from four and a half to five per cent., which was negatived by 40 to 6. A long, tiresome discussion, followed on the fifth section, providing for the payment of the interest at foreign money centers. At 10 o'clock P. M. the Senate was still on this section, which, after it had been slightly amended, it was moved to strike out altogether. This failed by a vote of 29 to 11. Mr. HOWARD offered an amendment to the eighth section that the national banks organized under the act may exchange the bonds now deposited by them as security for the new bond to be issued. Mr. CONKLING maintained that to compel the banks to surrender their valuable bonds for a four and a half per cent. bond, would be practical repudiation. At this point Mr. THURMAN moved to adjourn, there being only forty Senators present, thus making twenty-one a majority. The adjournment was carried on a division. When the yeas and nays were called twenty-two Senators voted in the affirmative and nineteen in the negative, and the Senate adjourned. From the progress made on the amendments to-day it is rather improbable that the bill will be finished to-morrow. The disposition to debate among Senators is very strong, and the printed amendments, which have not yet been acted on, are as large as the bill itself.

SPANISH CHEMISTS IN CUBA.

Mr. POMEROY introduced in the Senate to-day a resolution intended to help the Cubans. It recites that the Spanish rule in that country and the Spanish treatment of prisoners have been cruel, inhuman and a disgrace to civilization. The resolution was simply ordered to be printed and to lie on the table, which will probably be the last of it, unless it should be entombed in the Committee on Foreign Relations.

THE PATENT-OFFICE PRINTING.

The House to-day almost unanimously passed Mr. LAFLIN's joint resolution to change the system of printing and supplying the mechanical part of the Patent-office report. The features of the new plan were stated last night. The House accepted the measure gladly as the beginning of a Government book business, as Gen. BANKS tersely expressed it, in a handsome speech on the subject. The public will be better supplied, on the whole, than heretofore. The records of the Patent-office will become of higher authority, and their preservation in public libraries, courts of record and in the hands of private individuals will become more systematic and regular than heretofore. Besides, all this is done at a saving of $175,000 per year. Mr. LAFLIN has achieved an important and decided success, and in the face of the fact, too, that both his colleagues on the Committee were opposed to the measure.

THE CADETSHIP TRAFFIC.

The House Military Committee, to-day, examined two witnesses in regard to the charge made against Judge CHURCHILL, of New-York, of having improperly disposed of his cadet appointments. This makes three witnesses who have been examined in this case, and the Committee have become satisfied that the charge was the emanation of pure malice and nothing else. The witnesses who were examined to-day said they knew nothing about it; that they heard it from somebody else. The Military Committee will probably make no further reports until they are ready to report on all the cases now before them. They will also report as to what measures are necessary in regard to the status of the cadets who have been illegally appointed. They will probably recommend that they be mustered out of the battalions. The Committee will also make some recommendation in regard to what proceedings shall be taken against the parties who have acted as brokers in these negotiations.

GEORGIA—SEE FIFTEENTH AMENDMENT.

The Georgia bill was sent to the Senate yesterday, and at once referred to the Judiciary Committee, from which it was this morning reported back without amendment, Messrs. STEWART and RYCE only dissenting. The former will make a motion in the Senate to strike out the Bingham amendment, which will probably cause considerable discussion, but from present appearances there is a disposition to avoid prolonged debate by the Senate. It is, therefore, not impossible that the bill may pass, so as to admit of the seating of the Fifteenth Amendment proclamation by the 20th inst.

BILLS IN VARIOUS COMMITTEES.

The Indian Committee of the House considered to-day a proposition looking to an entire change in the Indian policy of the Government, which was finally passed over without further action than its reference to a sub-Committee. The bill known as the Port Warden bill now pending in one of the Committees of the House, will be taken up and acted on to-morrow by the body to which it has been referred. The fate of the bill, both in the Committee and in the House, is very doubtful. There is a decided disposition to make a law on this subject applicable to all sections of the country alike, but the feeling in favor of passing a special measure for New-York City is not very strong. The Indian Committee of the Senate had under consideration a joint resolution for the sale of a tract of land set apart in 1854 by treaty with the Shawnee Indians for the benefit of certain Indians of Black Bob's settlement. These lands have been occupied for several years past by settlers, citizens of Kansas. The bill provides for the sale of these lands to the settlers at $2 50 per acre. The Committee were not altogether clear as to the legal right of Congress, and decided to ask that the bill be referred to the Judiciary Committee of the Senate for their examination and report.

FROM NEW-YORK TO WASHINGTON.

The Air-line Railroad project was up again in the House to-day, but did not make much progress. Mr. INGERSOLL demanded the previous question on the passage of the bill, but it was refused. Gov. SWANN then proceeded to finish his speech on Senate bills, and against the bill. It is believed that the bill will finally pass, though the sentiment in its favor has been somewhat lessened by the great improvements made on the through line by its present management. The interviewers of that route have been almost wholly mitigated, and it is now proposed to go only with the city in Baltimore, by effecting the passage of the city by steam during the present year. If the agitation results in nothing else it will at least result in making the present route first-class in all respects.

INSURANCE TAXES.

A delegation from the New-York Board of Underwriters, to act in conjunction with representatives of the different fire insurance companies of the country, have arrived here, for the purpose of urging before Congress the remission of the tax of one and a half per cent. on the gross receipts of premiums by the fire insurance companies. They represent that the statistics of fire insurance companies show that the losses of the Underwriters amount to a fraction of sixty per cent. of their aggregate receipts, and that the expenses of conducting the business, including the item of revenue stamps, amount thirty per cent., leaving only about ten per cent. as the profits of the business. They appear before the Committee of Ways and Means to-morrow.

A STEAMSHIP BILL.

The representatives in this city of the different steam-ship interests of the country are very much flurried over the new bill framed by the Treasury Department, which has been sent to Congress. The bill in question is intended to consolidate and embrace all the various acts relating to steam-ships. Several changes are suggested, and efforts will be made in Congress to secure the addition of various amendments to the bill.

ARRIVALS AT THE CAPITAL.

Among the prominent arrivals in the city are: Gov. McCook, of Colorado; Hon. David A. Wells and Assistant District Attorney Jackson, of New-York, who are at Willard's; A. S. Barnes, L. R. Chittenden, F. A. Conkling, New-York; Freeman Clarke, Rochester; C. E. Longstreet, E. E. Judson, of Syracuse; Hon. J. V. L. Pruyn, of Albany; Thos. J. Hoffin, of Providence, and B. H. Epperson, of Texas, who are at the Arlington.

Dispatch to the Associated Press.

THE STATE DINNER AT THE WHITE HOUSE.

At the President's State dinner this evening, Representatives Conger and Brown occupied one end of the table and Representatives Wells and Longridge the other. On one side of the table were Representative Griswold, Mrs. Morrell, Representatives Myers and Cullom, Mrs. Scott, Senators McCreery and Carpenter, Mrs. Grant, Senator Willey, Senator Ferry, Mrs. Washburn; Representatives Lynch and Jenckes, Mrs. Hoar and Representative Ceasna; and on the opposite side, Representatives Hoar, Wilson, of Ohio, and Washburn, Mrs. Lynch, Senator McDonald, Senator Stewart, Mrs. Ferry, the President, Mrs. Carpenter, Senator Scott, Representative Morrell, Mrs. Myers, Representatives Hooper and Benjamin, and Mrs. Griswold.

THE APPROPRIATIONS.

The Committee on Appropriations are now ready to report the Naval Appropriation bill. The amount is not over fifteen and a half millions. The Committee have made much progress with Consular and Diplomatic, Post-office and Army bills. The remainder, to complete the series, are those making appropriations for fortifications, rivers and harbors and sundry civil expenses.

PERSONAL.

Gen. QUESADA paid his respects to the President this morning. The interview was only of about ten minutes' duration.

NOMINATIONS.

The following nominations were sent to the Senate to-day:

W. R. HARDY, to be Assessor of Internal Revenue for the Third District of Louisiana; JED. P. C. EMMONS, to be United States Attorney for the Northern District of Florida; BENJAMIN J. VERNEY, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Idaho Territory; HENRY M. MARTIN, Assistant Surgeon in the navy; Master FRANCIS M. SHEPARD, to be Lieutenant on the retired list.

FORTY-FIRST CONGRESS.

SECOND SESSION.

SENATE....WASHINGTON, Wednesday, March 9.

The Vice-President laid before the Senate the resolution of the Texas Legislature for the establishment of a postal telegraph.

CHARGES AGAINST THE DOMINICANS.

Mr. FERRY presented a petition from a Mr. HATCH, of Connecticut, setting forth that his father, DENNIS HATCH, an American citizen, was illegally restrained of his liberty by the Dominican Government. Mr. FERRY said that Mr. HATCH was a merchant in San Domingo, and a resident of a district over which the present contending forces had exercised jurisdiction alternately. Last August Mr. HATCH was arrested on frivolous charges, brought before a military tribunal and sentenced to be shot; but the sentence was referred to the Dominican Senate, his pardon was ordered upon condition of his leaving the Island, which, upon attempting to do, he was prevented, being restrained by the Government and returned to prison. Our Consul there made numerous efforts to secure his release, but these efforts were all foiled. He knew Mr. HATCH to be incapable of being implicated in any conspiracy and looked upon his imprisonment as an act of arbitrary oppression. He moved to refer the petition, and also the message from the President, in response to the resolution of the subject, to the Committee on Foreign Relations, in the hope that they would take some speedy action.

To Mr. SUMNER's inquiry, whether the Senator had any suggestion to make to the Committee, Mr. FERRY replied that he would suggest to the President of the United States to demand peremptorily the release of Mr. HATCH, and if that demand was not complied with, to enforce it by our naval force in the neighborhood of San Domingo.

Mr. SUMNER thought that it would be preferable to refer the judicial proceedings in the Dominican Government as to the cause of the detention of Mr. HATCH.

Mr. FERRY expressed his belief that the real cause of the imprisonment of the person referred to was that he possessed certain knowledge concerning an effort to swindle the United States Government out of a large sum of money in the purchase of that Island. Our Consular Agent having been expressly promised that Mr. HATCH should be released, and that promise having been flagrantly disregarded, he thought it better for the American Government to employ a more forcible argument than mere words.

The subject was then referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

THE SPANISH IN CUBA.

Mr. POMEROY introduced a joint resolution declaring that the conduct of the Spanish Government in Cuba in its treatment of captured insurgents and of persons suspected of sympathy with the insurgents, in mutilating the dead and disregard of age, sex and condition, is cruel, inhuman and barbarous, and deserves the reprobation of the Christian world.

Mr. SUMNER suggested that if the Senator from Kansas purposed adducing evidence in support of this resolution, it would be well to bring forward evidence on the other side. He was informed that several hundred Spaniards had been shot by the insurgents; he understood by order of Gen. QUESADA.

Mr. POMEROY replied that evidence would be presented doing justice to both parties, and, on his motion, the joint resolution was then laid on the table and ordered to be printed.

NEW RAILROAD AND TELEGRAPH.

Mr. KELLOGG introduced a bill to aid the construction of a railroad and telegraph line from Marshall, Texas, to San Diego, California, with branches and connections. Grants twenty alternations of land per mile on each side of the road. Referred to the Committee on the Pacific Railroads.

BONDED STORES.

Mr. WILLIAMS, from the Committee on Finance, reported the House joint resolution extending the time for a withdrawal of spirits from bonded warehouses, with a recommendation that it do not pass.

Mr. BAYARD, on behalf of the minority of the Finance Committee, expressed the hope that the recommendation of the majority that the bill should not pass, would not be the sense of the Senate when the measure came up for action.

ADMISSION OF GEORGIA.

Mr. TRUMBULL, from the Judiciary Committee, reported the House bill to admit the State of Georgia to representation in Congress. He said the Committee had instructed him to report it back with a substitute; that the conditions annexed to the bill, except the first, were the same which were annexed to the bills recognizing Virginia and Mississippi as entitled to representation, and which the Senate had twice adopted, the Committee believing it unnecessary to insist upon their own views in relation to those conditions. The substitute proved was in accordance with the recent report of the Committee relative to the election of State officers.

Mr. THAYER inquired if there was a minority report on the subject.

Mr. TRUMBULL replied there was not.

Mr. SEWARD wished to have it understood that several members of the Committee did dissent, and the fact would be known at the proper time.

Subsequently Mr. TRUMBULL made an ineffectual effort to take up the Georgia bill so as to dispose of it at once.

Mr. JOHN SHERMAN objected, as debate would have the effect of delaying the regular order, which was the Funding bill.

THE FUNDING BILL.

The funding bill was then resumed, and the motion of Mr. DAVIS to recommit the bill with instructions was defeated without a division. The question recurring on the amendment of Mr. CORBETT to strike out the provision of foreign agencies, debate was continued upon the general subject.

Mr. SCOTT advocated the propositions of which he had given notice, first, that the new bonds should be negotiated by the Secretary of the Treasury, and second, that the negotiation should be open to the inspection of the public. When, for instance, a thousand dollar note was disposed of, he wanted the proceeds to go directly into the Treasury and not into the hands of private bankers interested in the sale of bonds to their personal advantage. He said our own people understood the loan, that it did not need to be popularized; and, if it did, the national banks could be made use of, for they were bound to disclose to subscribers, dealers, from all quarters.

Mr. SHERMAN, in reply, said that the proposition of Mr. SCOTT was a departure from the policy of the authorities of Europe in the past, by depositing our bonds when we had not only three-fourths of one per cent. for our credit, but the national credit was in danger of being threatened to overspread the country.

Mr. MORRILL, of Vermont, said in regard to the gold payment, considering the expense attending the loan, he believed we should have to pay, not the cost of printing, engraving, &c., but the cost of minting, coining, &c., of gold, or one-half per cent. was allowed, he was on the other hand, of the opinion that the loan would be subsequently accepted. Upon the proposition for a substitution of bonds by the banks, he thought it neither fair nor honest to compel the Banks to accept of a security that would be less valuable than that which the Government had offered for the redemption of their bills. If the banks were not taxed enough, they ought to be taxed more, but their securities should be left whole, so that no one who had made an investment in a banking institution may have cause to complain of Congress.

Mr. POMEROY suggested an amendment which he proposed to offer, and the reason therefor.

Mr. POMEROY then moved an amendment to the Senate, after which an amendment by Mr. MORRILL, of Vermont, to the first section, to insert the words "not exceeding," in order that the rate of interest may be less, but shall not exceed five per cent., was adopted.

Mr. MORRILL, of Vermont, then moved to amend the second section so as to make the rate of interest on the four hundred millions of bonds therein provided for not exceeding five, instead of four and a half per cent.

Mr. WILLIAMS opposed the amendment, believing that to say the rate shall not exceed five per cent. was equivalent to saying that should be the rate. He was in favor of giving the Secretary of the Treasury ample power, believing that such a course would enable the Government to borrow at four and a half per cent.

Mr. SPRAGUE thought the policy of fixing an arbitrary rate of interest for a number of years was a bad one, as it might be possible in the meantime, to fund the debt at a lower rate.

The amendment of Mr. MORRILL, of Vermont, was then voted down by yeas 17, nays 40.

The yeas were: Messrs. Bayard, Brownlow, Buckingham, Cassidy, Ferry, Johnston, Morrill of Vermont, and Stockton.

The question was then stated to lie upon Mr. CORBETT's amendment to strike out the fifth section, which provides for the payment of the coupons at European agencies.

Messrs. CORBETT, SUMNER, CHANDLER and CAMERON favored the amendment upon considerations of national dignity and propriety, believing that foreign capitalists would not be speculated upon, that the loan should be recognized at home and abroad as an American loan.

At 4¾ o'clock the Senate took a recess till 7½ o'clock this evening.

EVENING SESSION.

THE PROPOSED TUNNELS UNDER THE RIVERS.

On motion of Mr. RAMSEY, the bill giving the consent of Congress to the laying of tubes or tunnels across the East River from Brooklyn to New-York, and across the North River from New-York to New-Jersey, and making them post roads when constructed, was taken up. The Senate Commerce Committee's amendment, requiring the tunnels to be so constructed as not to obstruct or impair navigation was agreed to, and also an amendment directing that the work shall be under the direction of the Secretary of War. The bill then passed.

THE FUNDING BILL AGAIN.

The Funding bill being taken up, Mr. SHERMAN, with a view of meeting the objections to the bill as offered on the subject of taxation, moved to add an amendment authorizing the Secretary of the Treasury to make the coupons of any portion of the four per cent. bonds payable at the office of an authorized agent of the United States, in either the cities of London, Paris, Berlin, Amsterdam or Frankfort.

Mr. CORBETT opposed the whole proposition, remarking that the omission of securities in the currency of a foreign nation as proposed, and the establishment of foreign American agencies, were without precedent, and he had not heard an argument which, in his opinion, was sufficient to induce the Senate to agree to the proposition. He had a very high idea, and had put upon the importance of the bill, he wished to say that if the bill had gone down to the sepulchre of uncomfortable bills, or had never been presented, the fact would not have been one to be regretted, as all regulate authority to the Secretary of the Treasury for refunding the public debt already existed in the statutes of 1862, and April 12, 1866.

Mr. SHERMAN thought no Secretary of the Treasury would attempt to negotiate a loan under the general provisions of the statutes referred to. He proceeded to show that, by paying the interest abroad, through the proposed foreign agencies, a large saving would be effected, because the people of other nations would sooner have a four per cent. loan where the interest was payable in their own currency, than a five per cent. loan with the interest payable in our own.

Mr. CONKLING stated that the establishment of foreign agencies, as proposed by the bill, would be a simple shipment of specie, every six months, of some twenty-five millions of specie.

Mr. SPRAGUE referred to some of the incovenniences attending the shipments, arguing that, in case of a foreign war, the insurance on this specie would rise from five to ten per cent.; that it would be liable to capture; the payment of the coupons jeopardized, and the credit of the country endangered. He favored the retention of all surplus capital as needed by the business interests of the country.

The amendment offered by Mr. SHERMAN was then adopted by yeas 36, nays 16.

Mr. MORRILL, in reply to the assertion that it would be derogatory to our national character to make the coupons payable abroad, said the bill contemplated the negotiation of a large part of the bonds in foreign countries. By making the coupons payable abroad, the saving of interest would be very large. Capitalists in Europe whom we expect to take our bonds will look at the matter exactly as would we ourselves if we were buying bonds, the coupons of which were to be payable in Amsterdam or Paris. We would prefer taking a lower rate of interest rather than be subjected to the trouble and expense of getting our interest from abroad. Therefore, if our interests were to be subserved by paying the interest abroad we should take a practical view of the matter and not allow any feeling of pride to interfere with it.

Mr. OATMAN made some desultory remarks in which he gave notice of his intention to offer an amendment to require the Secretary of the Treasury to redeem all the fractional currency by the 1st of July.

The Senate then voted upon Mr. CORBETT's motion to strike out the fifth section, authorizing foreign agencies, which was agreed to by 29 yeas to 11 nays.

The amendment proposed by Mr. SCOTT, requiring the negotiation of the bonds by the officers of the Treasury alone, and all exchanges or sales to be made by public bids, was then rejected.

Mr. HOWARD offered an amendment, pending which the Senate, at 10¼ o'clock, adjourned.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

Mr. DAWES, of Massachusetts, from the Committee of Appropriations, reported a resolution calling on the Secretary of the Treasury to report what public buildings not yet commenced, for which estimates had been submitted this session, are necessary to be commenced next fiscal year, and what buildings now in process of construction require the work to be continued. Adopted.

THE LATE EDWIN M. STANTON.

Mr. DAWES asked to report and have put upon its passage the bill to pay to the family of the late EDWIN M. STANTON one year's salary as a Justice of the Supreme Court. Mr. VAN TRUMP objected.

LABORING MEN ON THE TARIFF.

Mr. WOODWARD presented petitions of 1,135 laboring men of his district, remonstrating against any changes in the general tariff as suggested by the Free Trade Convention, and asking for a reduction of the duty on tea, coffee and other necessary articles not produced in this country, and such readjustment of duty on articles made in this country as will sustain home industry. He remarked that these petitions were entitled to most respectful consideration, and that he intended having debate on the Tariff bill to express his own views on the subject of wages and labor.

THE RECENT REVENUE SEIZURES.

Mr. MUNGEN asked leave to offer a resolution reciting statements in the public Press, mentioning the NEW-YORK TIMES, Herald and Sun, in reference to unjustifiable actions of the Internal Revenue officials in New-York and elsewhere, and that public opinion is outraged by continued acts of aggression on the rights of citizens and taxpayers; and calling on the Commissioner of Internal Revenue for statements as to the authority under which his subordinate officers have recently seized upon private property and private papers in New-York and elsewhere without furnishing the owners thereof immediate information as to the cause of such seizures. Mr. JENCKES objected.

POSTAL EXPRESS.

Mr. GARFIELD offered a resolution directing the Post-office Committee to inquire into the expediency of adding a postal express to the mail service, in order that small packages may be sent over the principal mail routes at reasonable rates. Adopted.

REWARDS TO NAVAL OFFICERS.

Mr. SCOFIELD introduced a joint resolution for advancement of naval officers for distinguished services. Referred.

THE AIR LINE RAILROAD.

The bill for the Air Line Railroad between New-York and Washington came up as the business of the morning hour. Various amendments as to corporators and as to details were offered and agreed to.

Mr. KERR moved to postpone the bill till Thursday, the 31st of March. Rejected by 51 to 65.

Mr. INGERSOLL was explaining and advocating the bill, when Mr. WOODS remarked that, if the bill was passed, he would guarantee to give to its corporators twenty millions for their franchise. Mr. INGERSOLL replied that the franchise would not be worth five millions, and he did not understand why the gentleman from New-York should offer fifteen millions in addition.

Mr. WOODS—There is a big wind in this bill.

Mr. INGERSOLL would guarantee that the gentleman from New-York could have the franchise for one million.

Mr. WOOD—I will guarantee to raise in the City of New-York ten millions for the privilege granted in this bill.

Mr. COX—I raise the point of order that it is in order to put up or down bids at auction on this floor, either for one million or twenty millions.

Mr. INGERSOLL—The gentleman from New-York (Mr. WOODS) knows very well that his proposition is not in order.

Mr. WOOD—If the gentleman from Illinois will permit me he will say only three words. I can assure him that I am entirely sincere in saying that the franchise proposed to be given to a few men by this bill, will in Wall-street command a capital of twenty millions as a bonus.

Mr. BANCOX—I want to know whether the gentleman from Illinois has the right to sell this charter?

Mr. INGERSOLL—I have as much right to offer to sell it as the gentleman from New-York has to offer to buy it. No sort of bribe or bribery or braggadocia will accomplish anything here. (Laughter.)

Mr. COX—Then I hope my friend from Illinois will withdraw his bill. (Laughter.)

Mr. INGERSOLL—I would like to accommodate my amiable friend. (Mr. COX.) but I cannot withdraw the bill. The corporators named in the bill do not want to sell the franchise, but intend to build the road, and this is why I have objected.

Mr. SWANN—Have the corporators named in the bill been consulted by the honorable chairman, and agreed to accept the trust?

Mr. INGERSOLL—They have not been consulted by me.

Mr. SWANN—What information has the gentleman that they will build the road?

Mr. INGERSOLL—The Committee that reported this bill is not acting with the House. The Committee expresses that these corporators are men of capital and business energy.

Mr. COX—I would like to amend an amendment which I think would carry this bill through Congress.

Mr. INGERSOLL—It looks very much as if it were going through now.

Mr. COX—I wish to suggest to the gentleman to strike out all these names of corporators, and insert the names of members of Congress. It will then go through with a bulging majority. (Laughter.)

Mr. INGERSOLL—I will yield to the gentleman to make that motion. (Laughter.)

After further discussion, Mr. INGERSOLL moved the previous question, but the House refused to second it by a vote of ayes 71.

Mr. SWANN addressed the House in opposition to the bill, alleging that there was no public need for it, that the system of railroad now existing between New-York and Washington, was sufficient for all the needs of travel and commerce, and was managed as liberally as any railroad in the country; and also arguing that the exercise of such power by Congress would be very most disastrous to the City of large capital that the States and the people had heretofore invested in great works of internal improvement by creating a forced opposition with the aid, countenance and sympathy of the general Government to favor one interest at the expense of another. Before concluding his remarks the morning hour expired, and the bill went over till the morning hour to-morrow.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA BUSINESS.

Mr. GARFIELD, from the Committee on Rules, reported a rule devoting exclusively to the business of the District of Columbia, when claimed by that Committee, the third Friday in each month, from 2 o'clock P. M. till the adjournment. After a brief discussion the rule was adopted.

REFORM IN PRINTING.

The House then resumed the consideration of the joint resolution reported yesterday from the Committee on Printing, in reference to printing the Patent-office reports.

Mr. JENCKES, Chairman of the Committee on Patents, spoke at length in favor of the joint resolution, saying it had the concurrence of that Committee and of the Committee on Patents.

Mr. CAKE, a member of the Printing Committee, opposed the joint resolution as adverse to the interest of inventors, and because it was nowhere shown that its result would be even economical. He therefore warned the House not to go into this thing rashly.

Mr. MUNGEN, another member of the Printing Committee, also opposed the resolution. He charged that there was a great deal of pretty engraving and lithographing concealed in it. All that the inventors of the country wanted was the Patent-office reports as at present gotten up.

Mr. BANKS regarded the joint resolution as a very important one. In the first place it was the beginning of the Government book business; in the second place, the printing books by the Government. He did not know but that the same system should be applied to the agricultural reports. The Patent-office reports were a sort of encyclopedia of inventions, and there would be as much sense in distributing single volumes of an encyclopedia to various individuals, as to distribute individual volumes of the Patent-office Report among the people. He ventured to say that, outside of the Government offices, there was not a complete set of these Patent-office reports in the whole country. Where was any inventor now able to find an encyclopedia of inventions whereby he could learn all that had been done in any particular line of invention? Therefore, it was that he favored the resolution to print one hundred copies of complete specifications of each patent, to be deposited in the State libraries, where inventors could have access to them. The resolution would multiply inventions, relieve the country of the unwise and wasteful distribution of public books, and by the saving in expenses of the mails, permit a reduction of the rates of letter postage.

Mr. JENCKES offered an amendment authorizing the Commissioner of Patents to furnish also a complete set of such specifications and drawings to any public library that will pay for binding the same into volumes to correspond with those in the Patent-office, and that will keep them for convenient access to the public. Agreed to.

Mr. LAFLIN remarked that each additional set would cost $24.

Mr. POTTER advocated the joint resolution as not only as right in itself but as initiating a better system of printing public documents.

Mr. KERR also supported it, but thought that provision should be made to have one copy deposited in each Congressional district, so that they would be in reach of all the mechanics of the country.

Finally, the joint resolution was passed without a division.

ORDER OF BUSINESS.

Mr. LOGAN then proceeded to call up the special order, being the bill to reduce the number of officers of the army.

Mr. DAWES, of Massachusetts, suggested the propriety of ascertaining if there was for the passage of the Deficiency bill.

Mr. LOGAN declined to yield for that.

Mr. SCHENCK gave notice that as soon as the army bill was out of the way, he proposed to press the consideration of the tariff and tax bills as special orders.

Mr. LOGAN said he would yield a few moments for the introduction of bills.

BILLS INTRODUCED.

Mr. MORRELL, of Pennsylvania, introduced a bill to provide for celebrating the hundredth anniversary of American independence by holding a national exposition of arts, manufactures and products of nature in Philadelphia in 1876. Referred.

Mr. BOLES introduced a bill for the auditing and payment of claims of loyal citizens in the late rebel States; also, to provide homesteads for colored people in the Southern States. Referred.

Mr. STEVENSON, of Ohio, from the Committee on Mileage, reported a bill to regulate mileage. It reduced mileage from twenty to ten cents per mile, and required travel by the shortest practicable route.

Mr. TANNER from the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds, reported a bill to incorporate the Washington Market Company. Recommitted.

Mr. ALLEN, from the Committee on Education and Labor, reported a bill amendatory of the act establishing the Bureau of Education. Recommitted.

THE ARMY BILL.

Mr. LOGAN moved that the bill for the reduction of the number of army officers, might be considered in the House as in Committee of the Whole. Agreed to. He gave notice that he would call it up to-morrow.

The House then at 4 o'clock P. M. adjourned.

Funeral of Senor Paul, Late Minister from Venezuela.

The funeral of the late Señor J. J. PAUL, late Minister from Venezuela, who died at Washington of apoplexy, took place yesterday morning from St. Francis Xavier's Church, Sixteenth-street, between Fifth and Sixth avenues. Messrs. Royal Phelps, S. Nicholson, J. C. Trad, Consul of Peru; Jose Valiente, Gen. Arismendi and Señor Flores, Minister of Ecuador, were pall-bearers. The following gentlemen represented the family of the deceased: EMANUEL MENDEZ, of Castor; ANDREW HERNANDEZ, EMILIO DE LAS CASAS, Consul of Venezuela. The remains were placed in an elaborately wrought casket, rich with silver mountings, which was surrounded on funeral charge before the High Altar, in the beautiful Church of the Jesuit Fathers. Four large tapers were placed near the casket, which had no floral decorations. Father DIES LUTTES celebrated a low mass. On the conclusion of the religious ceremonies, the body was borne to Calvary Cemetery for interment. A goodly number of carriages were present.

The Bishop Case—The Complaint Dismissed on Technical Grounds.

At the opening of the Court yesterday, Mr. BERGH, the counsel for the defendants, JONES and STRANGE, in the action brought against them by Mrs. BISSOR, moved to dismiss the complaint on the ground that there was not sufficient evidence to show that the defendants had procured the arrest of the plaintiff. After argument on the motion, Judge VAN BRUNT said the only evidence in the case tending to prove that the arrest of plaintiff was by the direction or procurement of the defendants, was the fact that, after the arrest had been made, they paid the expenses incurred by the officer in making it, and that they also attended at the Station-house and gave a statement of the circumstances attending the procu

THE FULLERTON TRIAL.

Commissioner Osborn, Ex-Marshal Shurmer and James Gulick on the Stand—The Alleged Attempt to Block-Mail Collector Smith—Letter of M. Fullerton—Cross-Examining Belknapp's Witnesses—Testimony.

The United States Circuit Court room was again crowded yesterday, by members of the Bar and others interested in the result of the peculiar trial against ex-Judge FULLERTON. At 11 A. M. the Justices (WOODRUFF and BLATCHFORD) took their seats on the bench.

United States Commissioner JOHN G. GERMAN was recalled as a witness, and his examination was continued by District Attorney PIERREPONT.

Commissioner German's testimony was, to substance, that he was introduced to BELKNAP by Mr. FULLERTON about the 1st of June, 1868, but that he (F.) then said nothing as to his relations with him. He testified, also, to having known Mr. FULLERTON since 1860; that they were both from Orange County, N. Y.; that when witness came to this City he read law with a firm having an office in the same building with Mr. FULLERTON, and that he (witness) had the use of his library; that Mr. FULLERTON interested to get for him his present position as Commissioner; and that he responded in the affirmative in Mr. FULLERTON's letter. He (F.) informed him (witness) that the Secretary of the Treasury had no confidence in the manner in which the then District Attorney COURTNEY was conducting his official duties, especially in the conduct of prosecutions in liquor cases, and that the time would come when they would have to strike at Mr. G. Witness did not remember having seen Dr. BLAINEY at FULLERTON's office. On one occasion BLAINEY came to witness to get him to go to No. 21 Broadway, (BELKNAP's office,) to take affidavits of certain witnesses. He (BELKNAP) said they would have bushels of such affidavits; he said nothing about BLAINEY. FULLERTON told witness at my house (as testified yesterday) that he had come to the conclusion that Mr. GULICK was a responsible party, and might safely be accepted as bail for Collector THOS. E. SMITH, when the latter was arrested; the subject of money was never mentioned by him in connection with the Smith arrest; witness knew nothing of it; Canada was not mentioned; noticed nothing peculiar in FULLERTON's manner; witness supposed SMITH had been arrested by a regular Deputy United States Marshal; had no idea it was by a sham Marshal; could not say he returned the warrant of arrest to him (witness); the warrant was returned without endorsement, and has never been filed; neither has the recognizance. Witness then stated as a reason why these papers had never been filed that he was in doubt as Mr. FULLERTON seemed to be, as to the legality of the arrest; that BELKNAP, acting on the presumption he had the power so to do, had deputized one to serve the warrant who was not a Deputy United States Marshal; that he (witness) was determined to see to it, in future, that the warrants were put into the Marshal's hands for service, and that as the whole thing would, at the proper time, come to public notice, he saw no necessity for filing the warrants or the recognizances. District Attorney COURTNEY subsequently asked witness if he had issued a warrant for SMITH'S arrest. He (witness) did not deny it, but refused to give the information, for the reasons above stated. Witness also detailed how Mr. GULICK brought to him an affidavit of one GEOFF, on which he, on July 1, 1868, issued warrants for SMITH'S arrest; that these were put into Marshal MURRAY'S hands for service, but that, at FULLERTON'S request, he (witness) obtained them from him, and gave them to FULLERTON. FULLERTON said SMITH was about to impart valuable information, and he (defendant) wanted to be assured of the legality of the issue of these warrants, in view of what had previously happened; SMITH was arrested Oct. 2, 1868, on both warrants; an examination was had on one charge only, and SMITH was discharged.

[The affidavit of GEOFF was then read. It charges that his (GEOFF'S) distillery was seized, afterward released, and that affiant paid $300 weekly to prevent any subsequent seizure.]

On cross-examination, the witness stated that beyond what FULLERTON had given him as reason why the arrest, &c., should be kept secret, he knew of no facts implicating any United States officers; rumors on this subject had some influence on his mind in leading him to comply with FULLERTON'S request as to keeping the matter secret from District Attorney COURTNEY and Marshal MURRAY. The same state of circumstances influenced him to take affidavits at BELKNAP'S office, and elsewhere, instead of at the United States Court building. Witness stated also that it was not unusual for him to have applications for bail made at his house; that he even kept blank bail bonds there for that purpose. The further evidence of witness was merely cumulative.

ROBERT MURRAY, ex-United States Marshal, was the next witness. His testimony was as to the routine observed in the Marshal's office when arrests are made; how the warrants are filed, &c. Witness had no knowledge of Collector SMITH'S first arrest. The warrant authorizing it was never filed in his office. The July warrants were not served before the September following, 1868.

District Attorney PIERREPONT asked the question why so long a time intervened between the issue of these warrants and the making of the arrest, but the Court interrupted the question. This witness was not cross-examined.

JAMES GULICK, the next witness, testified that he was a merchant doing business in this City, and that he lived in Yonkers, Westchester County; he knew Collector THOS. E. SMITH; met him in the Supreme Court building, June 13, 1868, when he (SMITH) told him he was under arrest, and solicited him to go bail for him, to which proposition witness agreed; SMITH, BELKNAP, BIRDSALL, DYETT, WILBURT and himself went to Mr. D. C. BIRDSALL's office, in Broadway, where Mr. FULLERTON afterward came in; SMITH was very much excited; he (witness) was introduced to FULLERTON; Mr. FULLERTON entered a room and sat down at a desk, on which were pen, ink and paper, and witness sat near him; BELKNAP spoke of settling the matter for $60,000, and FULLERTON told him he had no right to make any such settlement; BELKNAP, BIRDSALL and SMITH went into another room, and a refusal was reported; BELKNAP said he was acting only as counsel for Mr. BELKNAP; witness could not say that Mr. FULLERTON heard the proposition that was made as to settlement; he and witness remained in the outer room; FULLERTON wrote a letter to Mr. BIRDSALL, who was in the room with BELKNAP and SMITH; gave it to witness, who handed it to Mr. BIRDSALL in the room adjoining.

[Discussion here ensued between counsel as to what was the proposition as to settlement made by BIRDSALL to BELKNAP on SMITH's behalf; but the Court decided a statement of it to be inadmissible in evidence, in view of the fact that Mr. FULLERTON heard it. Finally District Attorney PIERREPONT asked the question, "Considering the distance of the parties from each other at the time, could a man with ordinary hearing understand what that proposition was, if he were in FULLERTON'S place at that time?" Witness answered, "I think he could," and on this reply being given, the Court allowed the testimony.] Witness then went on to state that the proposition was to the effect that Mr. SMITH should place $10,000 in Mr. BIRDSALL'S hands on account, and add $30,000 more in bonds of the Georgetown and Alexandria Railroad, the whole to be used in his (BIRDSALL'S) discretion; they then went to SMITH'S house, where the money and stock were paid; subsequently (Mr. FULLERTON having previously left, before the party left BIRDSALL'S office) the party went to Commissioner German's house, where witness signed Mr. SMITH'S bail-bond; the next day SMITH went to Clifton, Canada; saw him afterward, June 24, in this City; told FULLERTON SMITH had returned, and he (FULLERTON) desired witness to make an appointment for him to see him at BIRDSALL'S house on the day following; witness did so; FULLERTON and SMITH met at BIRDSALL'S, went into an upper room, and were in conference for three-quarters of an hour; subsequently defendant told witness that this affair had proved to be greatly prejudicial to his character, and wanted witness to write a letter stating all he knew concerning it, which letter he (FULLERTON) would have published.

On cross-examination, the witness said he did not read all the letters written to Mr. BIRDSALL by Mr. FULLERTON when they were in separate rooms in BIRDSALL'S office; he read the first few lines of it, however, while it was being written, and identified a document produced while on the stand as the letter he handed to Mr. BIRDSALL. This letter Mr. JENKS then read to the jury. It is as follows:

DEAR SIR: I shall now leave, if SMITH has to disclosure to make; and I send you in this note rather than detain you in your consultation. Put a stop at once to this talk about a settlement; for no one has authority to settle such a matter but myself. It must be done in Washington, if it is; and I doubt if it can be done there. You can say, however, and I will throw no obstacles in your way. If the Government will fix upon some amount which may be deemed to be the sum which the Government has been defrauded out of, and accept it in satisfaction, well and good. The officer will get his money, in such case. I will instruct no other proceeding against SMITH while you are negotiating, and he can away on his journey, and the thing will blow over if you arrange the matter at head-quarters. If you do not, however, he must stand his trial, and therefore must give his recognizance on a good question. I will attend to that early in the morning, or even to-night, if you wish.

Yours hastily, WILLIAM FULLERTON.

D. C. BIRDSALL, Esq.

This letter being put in evidence, the Court adjourned till 11 o'clock this morning.

The Alleged Poisoning of Capt. Alexander.

IRA C. GARDNER and his wife, who are held under a charge of poisoning Capt. ALEXANDER, were yesterday brought before Judge INGRAHAM on a writ of Habeas corpus. The charge of the prisoners was asked for on the ground that Prof. DOREMUS having reported that no evidence of poison was discovered by his analyzing the intestines of the deceased, there no longer existed cause for the detention of the accused parties. In consideration of the fact, however, that Coroner FLYNN still had the case under investigation, Judge INGRAHAM postponed the hearing until Monday next, when it is expected the Coroner will have completed his investigation and rendered his decision, either exonerating or disgracing the prisoners.

At the meeting of the New-York Liberal Club last evening, Prof. RAU read a paper on the "Recent Archæological Discoveries in Europe." He described the nature and formation of the remains of the animal kingdom, and implements of offensive and defensive warfare, chiefly composed of flint, bearing the marks of early use, which have been recently found in England and France, which, he asserted, all tended to prove that man himself grew gradually during the lapse of ages from an exceedingly low state to his present superior condition.

Mr. ROBERT RUSSEL, of Elizabeth, Chairman of the Board of Chosen Freeholders of Union County, offers a reward of $50 for the recovery of the body of the man said to have been drowned at the Bay Bridge last week. Some time ago the members of Phil. KEARNEY Post No. 3, G. A. R., undertook to raise subscriptions for a monument to Gen. KEARNEY, and elected Major J. N. SEARS, of Newark, Treasurer. It appears that Gen. HALSTEAD, Chairman of the Post, has restored the amount of the alleged defalcation out of his own private purse. The members of the Post, therefore, at their last meeting, passed resolutions expelling Major SEARS, and thanking Gen. HALSTEAD for his generosity.

JAMES SMYTH, an employe of the Erie Railway Company, lately a resident of Jersey City, was killed on a wrecking train at Goshen, N. Y., on Monday night, his head being accidentally caught between the caboose and the derrick. Coroner BURNS, of Jersey City, will hold an inquest.

Yesterday Coroner BURNS, of Jersey City, countermanded the permit for the burial of a woman named WINNIFRED CARL, granted by Dr. PETTIT, the circumstances of her sudden death being of such a suspicious nature as to make the holding of an inquest advisable.

Dr. PETTIT, of Elizabeth, convicted in the United States District Court at Trenton, of restoring defaced revenue stamps, has been fined $300 and costs.

OUR MONEY MAKERS.

Some of the Blunders that Have Been Committed—Who are Responsible—The New Gold Certificates.

Those officials and contractors of the Government who have from time to time, during the past seven or eight years, been intrusted with the duty of designing, engraving and printing the paper substitutes for money, have in the majority of cases produced some very creditable specimens of work, and in others—more recently—have issued notes which would not bear a critical inspection, or reflect much credit upon those who had anything to do with their execution.

The Government officers, when first the issue of paper money became a necessity, sought such designs as were elaborate, and such materials for paper and ink as would render counterfeiting nearly impossible. The results of careful study and chemical experiment was shown in the production of the "greenback," which has done uninterrupted and successful duty from first to last during the era of paper money. Each successive issue of notes was similar in design, and, so long as the execution was intrusted to experts in the business of engraving and printing, the notes were ornaments of the engraver's art. Counterfeits were few compared with the immense number of the notes issued, and when the counterfeiters did succeed in making close imitations of the legal tender and national bank notes, the points of difference were so clear that the public could be readily cautioned regarding them, and instructed how to determine their character.

When it became necessary, from the extensive character of the transactions in gold, to issue gold certificates, the utmost skill of the engraver was summoned, and resulted in the production of certificates which were elaborate and beautiful in execution, and surrounded with such safeguards as to defy counterfeiting. Those who have had the gratification of possessing these yellow bits of paper, representing the precious metal, will bear witness to the fact that they were ornamental and beautiful to look upon.

USELESS TINKERING.

Unfortunately for the community the "powers that be" in Washington, not satisfied with letting well alone, sought recently to "improve" upon the issue both of greenbacks and gold certificates, and the result is a ridiculous failure in the majority of cases. In the first place, it was determined to print greenbacks upon paper the like of which had never been seen before. Bank note paper, as is well known, is made from silk. The authorities went one step further, and incorporated in the material for the new paper red silk, which was intended to give it a very pretty and novel design. The experiment resulted in a failure. The paper, which "marked" or blurred in consequence of the silken fibres rising from the surface, and the effect may be seen on any of the new notes issued by the Government. The face of the note appears as if the engraver's tool had been scratched across haphazard, and the vignettes and lettering are sadly mutilated. At first only the denominations below and including fifties have been issued, but the manner in which they are received by the public should induce an immediate withdrawal of the whole issue, and if no better course can be pursued, a return to the old plan of execution and printing. The backs of these notes are engraved and printed by the Bank Note Company, while the work on the face is done by the Bureau of Engraving and Printing at Washington.

THE GOLD CERTIFICATES.

Still more serious is the blunder which has been committed in the engraving and printing of the gold certificates. These have a limited circulation, chiefly between the Treasury offices and banks, bankers and brokers, represent large amounts, and should be as perfect and irreducible to make them. The old gold certificates were, as above stated, models of beauty. The new ones are so faulty as to be a constant source of annoyance to the brokers and bankers through whose hands they pass.

One reporter was shown several of the new issue yesterday, which were about to be sent by one of the leading banking houses to the Assistant Treasurer for redemption. An accurate description cannot be given, but the reader may obtain an idea from the following sketch which sort of things they are:

The engraving is no more elaborate than some of the best executed checks used by bankers. The backs are perfectly plain. On the right end of the certificate are characters unknown to the masses of the community, which are supposed to represent the denomination of the certificate. The $500 have this character, "[illegible]" the $1,000 thus, "CIↃ;" the $5,000 this, "IↃↃ;" and the $10,000 thus "CCIↃↃ." So enigmatical are these characters that, our reporter is informed, bankers and brokers are accustomed to peste over the right end of the note a slip of paper on which are written figures representing the denomination which is ascertained by referring to the body of the note. But there is nothing save the word "ten" in the $10,000 to distinguish it from the $1,000 or $5,000. There is a difference in the vignettes on the left end, but these will not aid in distinguishing the denomination. The $500 have the portrait of LINCOLN; the $1,000 that of HAMILTON; the $5,000 that of MADISON, and the $10,000 that of JACKSON. These new certificates were issued about the middle of last month. On Valentine's Day a banker passed one of the certificates to a customer, when the latter, looking at it attentively, remarked: "No you don't; that is very neat but I prefer not to take valentines for gold certificates."

The old issue of gold certificates have written signatures which was an additional safeguard against counterfeiting. In the new issue most of the signatures are printed. Those which are written are Assistant Treasurer FOLGER's, R. R. HITCHCOCK's, W. G. WELLS's and OSCAR FINK's—the certificates being issued on the order of the three last named gentlemen.

Where time is money, as it is with sentinels who deal in these gold certificates, the faulty issues mentioned are very annoying. Those who connect our cable and Continental cables are intimated to do so in the same manner that they count or handle other representatives of money—by picking up each note with the thumb and finger of the right hand, resting the left upon the counter. The reader will see that in doing this no time can be saved in the recommutation of the certificates from the enigmatical characters described above. Some of the certificates shown our reporter, yesterday, had figures, designating the denomination, printed in red ink beneath the characters. These, it was thought, had been subsequently added to the issue after they had been received at the Assistant Treasury here, in order to facilitate their issue.

The complaints which have been made regarding these commodious bills, doubtless, reach the Treasury Department, but if so, of them at once. No time should be lost in the counterfeiters should try their hand they would find imitation to be far from difficult.

BOARD OF HEALTH.

The Grand Rear Quarters—Debate of Swill Stillhouses—Smoke Nuisances to be Abated—The State of the Public Health.

The Board of Health met yesterday at the usual hour, President STONE in the chair. The routine business was presented from the attorney, and the usual orders made. In thirty-seven cases of violations of the Tenement house law, and twelve cases of non-compliance with the orders of the Board, the Attorney was directed to bring suits.

The dogs of Dr. STRAHAN, No. 41 East Twenty-third-street, were brought up by a letter from that gentleman, in which it was claimed that his canines are very valuable animals, and not only do not make any noise themselves but are actually conducive to the peace and quiet of the neighborhood by driving away a number of cats that formerly made night hideous in the locality. It was averred on the other hand that the dogs have gained a proficiency in howling that could only result from constant practice, and therefore it was ordered that the suit against Dr. STRAHAN be prosecuted.

The smoke nuisance came up on a report from Dr. MONRAE MORRIS, Assistant Sanitary Superintendent, concerning the planing mill of ROBINS & CO., in Bank-street, which declares that a nuisance does exist caused by the smoke from that establishment and others in the neighborhood. Dr. MORRIS quoted from London authorities to show how that city had been easily freed from this annoyance, and suggested that an ordinance be prepared compelling the use of smoke consuming furnaces in all places in the city where furnaces are used in manufactures of trade. The matter was referred to the Sanitary with instructions to report at the next meeting.

The swill milk dealers in Brooklyn, E. D., came before the Board, by an attorney, and desired a permit to occupy the stables now in use until the 1st of May, when they pledged themselves to remove and end the nuisance. In speaking against the application Commissioner LINCOLN said he had made a personal inspection of these stables, and he could imagine nothing fouler or more dangerous to health than these stables, where the wretched cows are tethered by ropes only thirty-one inches in length, packed so close together that they cannot lie down, except upon each another, and fed upon the vile swill which is obtained from the distillery upon the opposite side of the street. Commissioners CRANE and STONE, joining in the discussion, the terrible infant mortality in Brooklyn was referred to, and it was claimed that it was chiefly owing to swill milk. The permit had been asked on the ground that the stables are used by poor men, who are bound to keep them until the day named, and Commissioner CRANE, saying that he preferred to act to save human lives, rather than the money of any man, rich or poor, moved that the request be denied, which motion was passed by a unanimous vote.

The nuisance caused by the offal heaps at Jamaica, L. I., were again complained of by residents of the vicinity and prompt action urgently requested. It was stated by Attorney BLISS that suits had been brought, but the Board deeming some additional action necessary, referred the matter to the Sanitary Superintendent for further inspection and report.

A letter was read from Mr. HENRY BERGH asking that the water be allowed to flow in the drinking fountains erected by the Board, in which he referred to the fact that the fountains of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals have been in use all Winter, and he concluded with the remark that the satisfaction he experiences in seeing the poor dumb laborers plunge their heads in the sparkling fluid is something difficult to describe. This appeal was considered and the Board ordered the water to be let into the fountains.

The report of Dr. HARRIS on the public health was read, in which he says:

Small-pox is ceasing to spread, even in the overcrowded German quarters that recently suffered so greatly. There were 161 deaths by it in the week ending with the 2d inst., 19 more than in the week before, and 41 in the adjacent eastern portion of the Seventeenth Ward. There were 32 deaths in the hospital of the shabby during the same period. The hospital is, however, a much lower rate of mortality than is experienced in City dwellings. The unusually large proportion of cases and deaths in adults that had been once vaccinated in childhood is a remarkable characteristic of the past Winter. Of the 800 cases of this disease that have occurred in New-York during the past nine weeks, 81 were adults, over twenty years of age, and only eighty-one were children under twelve. Of late years the frequency of small-pox to prevail epidemically in the great cities is experienced throughout Europe as well as in America. In the City of Paris there were eighty-three deaths by this disease the second week in February. The duty of giving more skillful attention to vaccination is confessed in both countries. New-York and Brooklyn continue to be more free from fatal disease than Philadelphia (population) each city of the twenty-three European cities from which we receive weekly reports of health and mortality. The total number of deaths from pneumonia in the City of New-York, the past nine weeks, has amounted to only 123; and, of these, 32 were from typhus and typhoid fevers, including the patients of all emigrant and other hospitals, and 91 were from lung fever. The typhus fever is the least fatal of all the contagion fevers. After medical inquiry into the history of 200 cases, and of every outbreak of this fever in the City, we may repeat the result of the report issued at Health in January, that "correctly understood, this disease cannot become a source of public alarm." The means that have been adopted are found to be entirely adequate to control and arrest the spread of this disease.

The report was filed, and the Board adjourned.

Green-Wood Cemetery—Meeting of Lot Owners—Statement for the Past Year.

A meeting of the lot owners of Green-Wood Cemetery was held at noon yesterday, at No. 20 Broadway, to receive the annual report of the trustees. The report was submitted by Mr. PIERREPONT, the President of the Board, and approved and ordered to be printed by the meeting. A vote of thanks was also passed for the faithful manner in which the interests of the owners had been attended to by the trustees and Controller during the past year.

The receipts during the past year from the sale of lots and other sources, have amounted to $664,637 76, and the expenditures $250,650 48, leaving a balance on hand of $6,622 28. The permanent improvement fund now amounts to $503,392, in addition of $54,535 49 having been made during the past year. If the 25th be added the value of land, and of land outside of the inclosure, amounting to $96,000, and also $43,000 derived from the premium on Government securities held by the Association, the available fund for improvement would be $642,323 53. The trust fund for repairs, &c., now amounts to $14,288 07, having been increased by $400 during the year. The number of interments during the past twelvemonth is 1[illegible],007.

The report also stated that the Serpentine pavement, which was laid on some of the paths in 1868, had proved decidedly unobservable, and had given been laid on all the paths from the western boundary of the Cemetery to near the center, 38,359 feet, or nearly seven and a half miles in all.

Private View of Paintings.

A large number of the leading artists of the City, with many other invited guests, were assembled at the rooms of Messrs. LEAVITT & STRYKENSKI last evening. Among the finest in the collection are an "Italian Beauty," by MULLER; "Tasso in Prison," by JOCELENS, an artist whose works are but little known in this country; a marine painting by MUSIN; a New-England Farmyard," by DUPRES; "The Intercepted Letter," by HUBNER; "Village School," by MOULINET; "Peace," by BOEE, a pupil of DEKEYSER; "The Trapper's Last Shot," by HANNET; "Just Awake," by E. JOHNSON, and an exquisite little gem called "The Pet Parrot," by BACALOWICH.

A fine supper was provided for the guests, and the usual courtesies were shown to all visitors. The sale will take place in about ten days.

The New Tax Bill in Nevada.

The act introduced into the Nevada Legislature this week provides that taxpayers of the State, property in which has been or hereafter incorporated in the State under general or special law, or dollar business therein, shall make, on the first Monday in November in each year, a report to the Controller under oath of the income received by and company for the year, and in default thereof for ten days, the of $5,000 will be imposed. Probable Homicide in Hoboken.

On Tuesday evening a veterinary surgeon named JACOB STREEMAN was walking along First-street, Hoboken, and on arriving at the corner of Adams, a gang of young rowdies, who were amusing themselves with snow-balling the pedestrians, rudely assailed him with a fusillade of hardened snow, which so enraged him that he remonstrated rather heatedly with them. Hereupon one of the mob, a young German named GEORGE DUPRE, confronted Dr. STREEMAN, and, as is alleged, sent him reeling on the side walk by a powerful blow on the temple, and while lying on the ground kicked him fiercely in the mouth. The doctor's recovery is doubtful.

Central Congress Union.

The delegates to this intelligent body of mechanics met yesterday in the Metropolitan Hall, Hester-street, in morning and evening session. The principal business transacted during the day was the appointment of a committee to wait upon Mr. BRIGGS, with a view to induce him to employ no coopers save those belonging to societies, and the passing of the following resolutions:

Resolved, That the period of time hereafter for apprentices to serve, will be not less than three or over five years.

Resolved, That when coopers working on tight work in an establishment shall strike, all coopers in that establishment shall strike at the same time.

Mr. BRIGGS was appointed to revise the by-laws and constitution, after which the convention adjourned to meet in Albany on the second Tuesday in September.

Fire in Eleventh-avenue.

Yesterday a fire broke out in the three story frame house with corrugated iron front Nos. 440 and 442 Eleventh-avenue, which totally destroyed the building with all its contents. It was owned by ANDREW A. WARNER, who occupied the No. 444 Eleventh-avenue, adjoining, was slightly damaged and the furniture of the tenants injured to the amount of $500 by water. Nothing has been learned as to the origin of the disaster.

ARMY AND NAVY RECORD.

WASHINGTON, March 9.—Gen. SHERMAN promulgates in general orders the following decision of the Secretary of War, relative to the responsibility of officers for public property and the action of the Boards of Survey: "An officer who turns over stores to another for transportation, in the best condition in which it is possible for him to put said stores, is relieved from any further responsibility concerning them, by the receipt of the officer to whom they are intrusted for transportation. Should the officer to whom the stores are consigned discover in them damage or deficiency, such as is described by the 'General Regulations,' he will apply for a Board of Survey, whose duty it is to ascertain the condition in which it is possible for him to put said stores, in
